

Parochial Plan Hidden Helper?

LANSING (AP)—Despite only a brief mention in Gov. William Milliken's massive education reform message, the long-fought issue of parochial aid could influence chances for passing other pieces of the executive package.

"It shows he's open to suggestions," said Speaker William Ryan, D-Detroit, a leader in previous parochial battles among lawmakers.

Young Iked
"It's like holding a gun to the heads of the legislators," declared Sen. Coleman Young, D-Detroit, an opponent of state aid to nonpublic schools.

Milliken touched lightly on the controversial question of parochial aid Thursday as he delivered his reform message to a joint legislative session.

The 1970-71 state school aid bill should be passed this fall, the governor said, and it should include money for private and parochial schools.

The bill Milliken will propose "will include a section appropriating $25 million during the 1970-71 fiscal year to assist in paying salaries of an estimated 5,800 certified lay teachers of secular subjects in accredited nonpublic schools."

Aides said specifics of the parochial proposal would be spelled out in the executive bill when it goes into the legislative hopper next week. Milliken, however, made no further mention of the question.

Maneuvering Likely
Passing a state aid bill this fall will "be difficult with it and difficult without it," said Senate Majority Leader Emil Lockwood, R-St. Louis. "Strong supporters of parochial will insist on it to have their votes" on other subjects, he said.

Young said he believed chances of passing public school reform would be less if parochial aid is not included. "Those who want parochial might refuse to vote for anything else if they don't get it."

Young accused the governor of "trying to sneak parochial in." And said Milliken appeared "willing to risk failure to solve problems in public education in order to push parochial aid through."

"I don't think they're paying enough (under the executive proposal) to cover the state's responsibility," said Senate Education Chairman Anthony Stamm, R-Kalamazoo.

THE STATE BOARD OF Education has picked Robert M. Winger, 65, to oversee the State Education Department until a permanent Public Schools Superintendent is found. Winger was deputy to Dr. Ira Polley who resigned recently. (AP Wirephoto)

Education Plan Hailed, But With Reservations

Solons Muster Better Ideas For Problems

LANSING (AP)—Lawmakers who heaped praise on Gov. William Milliken's education reform efforts appear eager and willing to stack up their own pile of "better ideas" for settling school problems.

"A milestone," Senate Education Chairman Anthony Stamm, R-Kalamazoo, said of the governor's reform package.

"Milliken must be praised for his great courage and leadership in moving into an area which many other governors have purposely avoided."

Senate Majority Leader Emil Lockwood, R-St. Louis, labelled the speech one of the best he'd heard in the Legislature.

Governor Sincere

"The governor is sincere," said House Taxation Chairman George Montgomery, D-Detroit. "He has done a good job and his (education reform) commission did a great deal of study."

"Forthright," said House Education Chairman Lucille McCollough, D-Dearborn.

Milliken's long-awaited education message, delivered to a joint session of the Legislature Thursday, included a call for sweeping change in the structure of education at the state and local levels, equally far-reaching shuffling in education financing methods and innovation of new programs.

Increased Budget
The plan proposes initially that the state's school aid budget be increased by $183 million over the $848.6 million spent for the current fiscal year. Some $25 million would go for parochial aid.

It also calls for substituting a uniform, 16 - mill statewide property tax for a variety of unpopular and often widely varying local property taxes. Milliken has promised the new rate would mean a total savings of some $300 million.

At the same time, however, he mentioned a boost in current state taxes in personal, corporate and financial income, aiming to collect some $384 million more.

Regional Directors
Control of education would be centralized under a department director, appointed by the governor, who would oversee and appoint some 10 or 15 regional directors. The current eight-member board of education and the superintendent of public instruction, now appointed by the board, would be abolished.

Constitutional amendments would be required to abolish the board and institute the statewide property tax. Local school districts would be consolidated, eliminating some 300 with less than a standard, kindergarten through high school, program.

Uniform budgets, prepared by the state department and the proposed regional districts, would replace unwieldy district appropriations now hammered out annually by the Legislature according to a complex formula tied to student enrollment and millage rates.

3-Year Program
The new plan would take some three years to implement.

"The recommendations are mine and I intend to fight for them," Milliken told lawmakers.

"If legislative debate results in further improvements, I will welcome these improvements. I will welcome constructive criticism by any legislator, but, in my judgment, it is incumbent upon those who criticize to offer a better solution."

Two Ways Out

Speaker William Ryan, D-Detroit, believed he had just that—a separate set of education recommendations which he plans to offer either in package form or as alternatives from which to reach compromise during bipartisan negotiations.

"Milliken can run the thing up the flag pole if he wants to or he can sit down and negotiate," Ryan said. "I'd rather do that and then try to get the votes as a common responsibility."

Senate Minority Leader Sander Levin, D-Berkley, branded Milliken's call to abolish the State Board of Education and superintendency as "very geometric, neat. But the question is whether it's effective. We have to be sure we don't destroy... local government," he said.

Judge Rejects Kopechne Plea, Asks Hearing

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. (AP)

A judge refused again today to dismiss a Massachusetts prosecutor's petition for an autopsy on the body of Mary Jo Kopechne and said "only a hearing will bring to light facts," on whether exhumation is necessary to determine how she was killed in Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's car.

Common Pleas Judge Bernard C. Brominski dismissed the plea of Mary Jo's parents to block an autopsy scheduled a hearing for Oct. 20.

The judge also rejected the request by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kopechne of Berkeley Heights, N. J., to delay a full hearing on the autopsy petition until after completion of an inquest into Mary Jo's death that already has attracted worldwide interest.

The 28-year-old Miss Kopechne was killed July 18 when Kennedy's car plunged off a narrow bridge into a pond on Chappaquiddick Island, near Cape Cod.

"It is the opinion of this court that the interests of both the public and the Kopechnes would be best served by developing the facts at a hearing to be held without delay," Brominski said in his six-page opinion.

"This would give the court the benefit of all the information available from both parties in arriving at the ultimate disposition of this matter."

Brominski once before, on Sept. 3, had rejected the Kopechnes' motion to dismiss the petition for exhumation and autopsy originally filed on Aug. 13 by Dist. Atty. Edmund Dinis of New Bedford, Mass. They claimed Dinis was on a fishing expedition and couldn't invade Mary Jo's grave in search of an alleged crime.

Brominski had researched the law exhaustively before rejecting the dismissal motion for the second time.

Milliken's 'Riddle' Worth Half Billion

LANSING (AP)—Gov. William Milliken's sweeping education reform proposals include one riddle, worth half a billion dollars, that the Michigan Legislature must solve in the face of an election year.

Milliken, in his Thursday address to a joint legislative session, proposed boosting state tax revenues by some $545 million by 1971.

Solons Challenged

At the same time he challenged legislators to decide if a corresponding property tax rebate, variously estimated at $300 million or $400 million, would encourage voters to submit to a 4.1 per cent state personal income tax. That would be an increase of 1.5 per cent over the present 2.6 per cent tax.

Added to a 2.1 per cent increase in the 5.6 per cent tax on corporate income and a 4 per cent boost in the 7 per cent financial institutions tax, the three taxes would generate an estimated $384 million.

Cigarette Tax Boost
Milliken also called for raising $45 million from a five-cent boost in the cigarette tax and by $116 million through elimination of the property tax credit.

Either way, Milliken said, there would have to be tax increases to cover revenue loss and additional costs of an educational budget he estimated would rise beyond $1.035 billion for fiscal 1970-71.

Legislators prepared to take the medicine but there were grimaces of displeasure at the taste.

"You can't promise people property tax relief while you're taking it away," said Sen. Sander Levin, Democratic minority leader. "We ought to spell out the tax problem before we vote."

Projections Questioned
Senate Taxation Committee Chairman Harry DeMaso, R-Battle Creek, called the proposal "disappointing" and questioned the revenue projections. The cigarette tax might not produce as much as Milliken's budget experts have predicted, DeMaso said, "and we could lose $25 million in bootlegging."

House Taxation Chairman George Montgomery, a Democrat, agreed.

Montgomery said his committee would hold six days of public hearings on Milliken's proposals.

Sen. Charles O. Zollar, R-Benton Harbor, said the state property tax referendum, "obviously is going to be the decision of the people. If they approve, it will infer they approve an increased income tax to make up the difference," he added.

Milliken admitted in his address that there "would have to be substantial new revenue" should the referendum be adopted.

Haynsworth Rift Still On

WASHINGTON (AP) — The battle over Clement F. Haynsworth's nomination to the Supreme Court shifted today from committee chambers to the Senate cloakroom where the outcome appeared to rest with some two dozen wavering senators.

In the aftermath of Judiciary Committee approval of the nomination Thursday opponents appeared to have the edge on the floor.

A survey by the Associated Press, combined with positions obtained from Senate sources, showed at least 46 votes against the nomination, 33 for it and 21 undecided.

It was clear, however, the situation could change dramatically for a number of reasons before the nomination comes to the floor, probably not for two weeks.

For one, the American Bar Association leadership decided Thursday to meet sometime in the next few days to review its position on Haynsworth, for the past 12 years a member of the 4th U.S. Court of Appeals in Richmond, Va.

The ABA endorsed the nomination last month during Senate hearings. A change in position could have significant impact.

Floor debate also cannot begin until the Judiciary Committee files majority and minority reports. Some senators said they would wait for these before making up their minds.

Griffin Plans Marquette Talk

MARQUETTE (AP) — Sen. Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich., will be the keynote speaker Nov. 1 when Upper Peninsula Republicans gather at Marquette for a $100-a-plate, fund-raising dinner. Plans for the dinner were announced by Lincoln B. Frazier of Marquette, chairman of the GOP's 11th Congressional District organization.

Commercial Fishermen Dislike New DNR 'Bait'

LANSING (AP)—Commercial fishermen and their backers in the Legislature were angry. Sports fishermen, fishing equipment manufacturers and Chamber of Commerce groups enthused over a proposed cutback in commercial fish catches next year.

29 Speakers Heard
The State Natural Resources Commission heard 29 speakers on the subject at its informal meeting at Lansing Thursday. A count showed the speakers 3-1 in favor of proposed new regulations by the Department of Natural Resources.

These would cut the number of commercial fishing licenses to about 200. Commercial fishermen would be limited to dipping their nets only in traditional spots. The species they would be allowed to take would be strictly limited.

Can't Stockpile Fish
"Under this plan we can't make a living — we're done," protested Wayne West, a commercial fisherman from the Whitefish Bay area of the Upper Peninsula. "You just can't stockpile fish," he told the commission.

A group of four legislators were mostly concerned that the commercial fishermen be reimbursed for the equipment they will be forced to discard.

More Study Suggested

Rep. Charles Varnum, R-Manistique, asked for more study and time. He asked for a delay until the Legislature can pass a bill proposed by he and Rep. Dominic Jacobetti, D-Negaunee, to compensate the fishermen for their useless equipment with $500,000 in state funds.

Rep. Robert Davis, R-St. Ignace, suggested that commercial fishermen thrown out of work be given priority for state jobs, especially with the department of Natural Resources.

Hellman Raps Plan

Rep. Russell Hellman, D-Dollar Bay, said the commission should be as concerned for the commercial fishermen as they are for starving deer or pesticide-threatened fish.

"Consider the human being and his family," he asked. "Many of them have been in the fishing business for three generations."

Rep. Raymond Kehres, R-Monroe, said the fishermen somehow should be helped over the hump.

Roger Bennett, secretary of the Ludington Area Chamber of Commerce, said Michigan's lumbermen once had committed vocational suicide.

"Fishermen are doing the same thing and would commit homicide on sports fishing," he contended.

Dr. John Spicer of Traverse City, a member of the great lakes fishery advisory committee congratulated the department on the program.

"Up until now," he said, "officials have been sitting on their rumps. What is good for fish is good for the sport."

Don Elwood, of Chicago, representing the American Fishing Tackle Manufacturers Association, reported that Michigan tackle factories alone shipped out $27 million in such equipment last year.

Salmon Stocking Hailed

"Michigan's salmon stocking program has been the greatest shot in the arm for sports fishing in the United States," Elwood said.

4 Education Hearings Set For Peninsula

LANSING (AP)—Rep. Lucille McCollough, D-Dearborn, chairman of the House Education Committee, has announced the schedule for a dozen hearings during the next two weeks on Gov. William Milliken's proposed education reform program.

Rep. George Montgomery, D-Detroit, chairman of the House Taxation Committee, also announced six hearings to deal with taxation aspects of the education proposals.

The Senate Education Committee also scheduled four hearings.

Taxation Committee hearings are slated for Monday at Wadsworth Hall on the Michigan Tech Campus at 1:30, at the Dickinson Hotel, Iron Mountain at 1:30 Tuesday and at the Manistique Court House at 8 p. m., Tuesday.

Senate Education Committee hearings will take place at Northern Michigan University on Wednesday at 10 a. m.

Militants Nursing Wounds In Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — Young radicals from the Students for a Democratic Society moved into a suburban seminary Thursday night after plans for a mass rock concert and threats of continued disturbances fizzled.

The Weathermen, most militant faction of the SDS, appeared to be nursing its wounds after violent street battles with police Wednesday night and Thursday morning.

With 2,000 National Guardsmen on alert in armories around the city, almost 1,000 persons assembled in Lincoln Park for the rock concert. Police swept through the park early in the evening and announced it was closed.

Then they withdrew to the edge of the park, and nearly everyone had gone by the regular closing hours of 11 p.m. There were no violent incidents and only a handful of arrests on disorderly conduct charges.

The SDS had said its four-day "national action" in Chicago would consist of the most "militant demonstrations in the history of the New Left." Spokesmen for the group predicted 5,000 to 15,000 persons would demonstrate in Chicago over the four days.

However, when the radicals took to the streets Wednesday night, smashing windows, windshields and swinging chains and clubs at police, the number of demonstrators was no more than 500.

Of the 1,000 persons in the park Thursday, most appeared to be curiosity-seekers and passers-by.

Hart, Conyers Join Vietnam Moratorium

By The Associated Press
Michigan Democratic Senator Philip Hart and U. S. Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich., are scheduled to be the main speakers at an anti-war rally in the University of Michigan's football stadium next Wednesday night.

Organizers said they expect 50,000 persons to join the march and rally, which will climax a day-long "Vietnam Moratorium" observation on the U-M campus.

Also scheduled to speak at the rally was radical leader Tom Hayden, a U-M alumnus.

Ann Arbor police chief Walter Krasny, who was to meet with rally organizers tonight, said he expects "we'll handle it much like any regular football Saturday."

He said he expects the march and rally to be "orderly."

At least two other major Michigan universities will have moratorium observances Wednesday.

Students at Detroit's Wayne State University were planning a strike. University President William Keat has announced that they will not be penalized for not attending classes.

Keat said he "strongly supports efforts of students and faculty to arrange on Oct. 15 an orderly and constructive expression of concern."

But, he said, the university would remain open.

University of Detroit president the Very Rev. Maolcolm Carron, S. J., also said students and faculty could observe the moratorium on classes and work without penalty. He said he would participate by concelebrating the noon mass for peace in the student chapel.

Public Officials Back Moratorium

By The Associated Press
Public officials are joining the snowballing support for the Wednesday moratorium on work and studies to seek peace in Vietnam. Demonstrations are expected in every state.

Governors, congressmen and senators, city councilmen and mayors, state legislators and former government officials will join businessmen, teachers and most of all students in what organizers say will be the largest series of nationwide antiwar protests ever held.

All-Night Session

War critics in Congress say they have enough support to keep the House of Representatives in all-night session Tuesday to support Moratorium Day, with the American flag flying over a lighted Capitol dome as symbolic backing for the protests.

Seventeen senators and 47 congressmen pledged to support the moratorium as long as it is peaceful lawful and nonviolent.

Rep. Benjamin S. Rosenthal, D-N.Y., said speakers had been lined up for an all-night session and predicted, "I think this is going to be the largest citizen participation of its kind in the history of this country."

Nixon Holds Firm

President Nixon said last week the moratorium would not affect his plans. Vice President Spiro T. Agnew said Thursday,

"Certainly citizens have a right to protest this war. But they have picked the wrong target."

Agnew told a Republican fund-raising dinner in Dallas, Tex., that the moratorium is "ironic and absurd." He suggested that protests should be directed at the North Vietnamese for their refusal to accept American terms for peace at the Paris peace conference.

Agnew canceled a campaign appearance in New Jersey next Wednesday at the request of Republican gubernatorial candidate William T. Cahill, who said he thought Agnew would be the target of antiwar demonstrators.

Richard Cardinal Cushing of Boston urged all churches to conduct special services Wednesday and the Archdiocese of Detroit called for a day of fasting and prayer.

The executive board of the Central Council of American Rabbis, representing 1,100 Reform rabbis, endorsed the protest and urged Nixon to head the protesters.

Some universities and colleges canceled classes, while others refused to stop normal activities. Many schools followed the example of the nation's largest public school system, in New York City, where 1.1 million pupils and their teachers were told they might skip classes to protest.

Appeal To Supreme Court?

City May Fight To Keep Police From Teamsters Ranks

By CLINT DUNATHAN

The City of Escanaba, which has been losing all the rounds in its effort to keep its police officers from being represented by any other union than that of law enforcement officers, may appeal to the Michigan Supreme Court for a final decision.

The appeal, if taken, would be from a finding of the Michigan Appeals Court, affirming a State Labor Mediation Board ruling that city policemen may join labor unions representing other professions or skills.

While the case has far-reaching implications and is of enormous interest statewide, right here in Escanaba it comes down to a narrower definition of union—and what union.

Council To Decide

"This case involves the City of Escanaba in relation to the right of its police officers to join Local No. 328, International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Warehousemen and Helpers of America," reports the Michigan Court of Appeals.

The City refused to recognize the Teamsters as sole bargaining agent for its officers, was charged with an unfair labor practice on complaint of the Teamsters, and the Labor Mediation Board ordered the City to recognize the Teamsters. The City appealed and lost—but it can still take the case to the Supreme Court if the Council wishes.

What will the City Council do?

"I don't know," said Mayor Cecil B. Chase. "We (the councilmen) have had a chance to discuss this only briefly, and it was just the other day that we received copies of the report from the Appeals Court."

Police In Teamsters

"We will have to sit down with our city attorney and discuss the situation, consider it, and decide which direction we will go. We do have a contract with the police officers that continues to June next year," Mayor Chase noted.

That contract was arrived at between the city and the police officers without the Teamsters representing them. The officers represented themselves in the negotiations on wages, hours and working conditions.

"They represented themselves because the city refused to meet with us and the matter was in litigation," said George J. Dunlap, secretary-treasurer of Teamsters Local 328.

"With exception of two officers, who were hired in the last year or so, the others are members of Local 328. They have taken withdrawals while this was before the court but they are members and there's no problem on that point," Dunlap added.

Compulsory

Compulsory arbitration of police and fire disputes, required by a new Michigan law which became effective Oct. 1, has implications for the autonomy of cities and counties.

Some of these implications will be discussed at a special conference at Michigan State University, Oct. 13.

The new law, Public Act 312 of 1969, calls for a three-man arbitration panel, decision of which is mandatory. Under it, the municipality and the employees union each name one representative to the panel, and these two name the third panel member who becomes chairman."

More than 100 mayors, city managers and county administrators will participate in the event.

year or so, the others are members of Local 328. They have taken withdrawals while this was before the court but they are members and there's no problem on that point," Dunlap added.

Officers Chase Local 328 The history of the controversy goes like this: March, 1966—Teamsters Local 328 petitioned the Labor Mediation Board for an election in a unit composed of all patrolmen and sergeants in the Escanaba Police Department.

May, 1966—The city objected to ordering of the election and recognized the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees as agent for the policemen.

November, 1966—The Michigan Labor Mediation Board certified the Teamsters Local 328 as representative for the policemen, on the basis of a Nov. 17 vote in which 12 police officers and four sergeants voted in favor of being represented by Local 328.

February, 1967—The Teamsters filed an unfair labor practice charge against the city, after the city refused to bargain with the Teamsters,

Court Split 2-1

April, 1967—The Labor Mediation Board heard the Teamsters unfair labor practices complaint. At this hearing the city sought to introduce evidence to show a conflict of interest if police officers were permitted to join a union representing private employees in industry. Such evidence was rejected.

October, 1967—The Labor Mediation Board ordered the city to recognize Local 328 "as the exclusive representative of the patrolmen and sergeants of the police force of the city."

October, 1969—The Michigan Appeals Court upheld the Labor Mediation Board and the Teamsters by a 2-1 decision of its three members.

The two judges who found "no error" in the Mediation Board decision are Judges Charles L. Levin and Robert Danhof. They held that city policemen are public employees and may join any labor organization they wish.

Dissenting View

A dissenting opinion was written by Judge Donald Holbrook of Clare. He holds that officers of government who have the duty of making, interpreting, and enforcing the laws "may not strike and also may not join with others in any union organization that would give special favor to the members of that organization or interfere with such officers' undivided loyalty to their oaths of office and to their duties."

Further he says: "Judicial notice may be taken of the fact that the Teamsters, Local 328 admits other members than police officers or other law enforcement officers. The privileges and responsibilities of such (non-police) membership are not in evidence although proffered by the City of Escanaba before the Michigan Labor Mediation Board."

"Police officers may be likened to a city attorney and his assistants—they are both appointed and they both take oaths of office. Both are responsible for the proper enforcement of the law."

Judge Holbrook believes issues such as the responsibility of police as officers of the law (not just as city employees) were not determined, although proffered by the city and not admitted by the Mediation Board. He would remand the hearing to the Mediation Board for redetermination and certification back for further review by the Court.

DICK SCHORY and his Percussion Pops Orchestra, considered one of the most unusual attractions ever to be offered here by the Delta County Community Concert Association, will present a program at the William Oliver Memorial Auditorium beginning at 8:15 p. m. Sunday night. Concert numbers range from "Sabre Dance" to "Thoroughly Modern Millie."

D.U.S. Finances Red Cross Work

"Since the citizens of Delta County maintain the agencies who are served by Delta United Services annual fund drive, it is necessary that they know what each agency does," said Tom Straebel, president of the D.U.S. Organization.

He said the 11 county agencies, whose operations will be financed for the next year by the D.U.S. fund campaign, starting Oct. 20, in and throughout Delta County add up to the county's conscience and heart in caring for its people who cannot entirely care for themselves.

"Delta County's Red Cross Blood Bank, a Delta United Services agency, in its bloodmobile visits collected 1,217 pints of blood," said Mrs. Betty Hamilton of the local Red Cross Chapter.

An additional 55 pints were drawn at St. Francis Hospital for various emergencies for a total of 1,272 pints. At St. Francis Hospital 655 pints were used for donations and 333 pints were replaced to other hospitals for transfusions to Delta County residents, with no charge to them.

The hospital is also supplied with other valuable blood derivatives from the blood bank.

This blood bank is of primary importance when considering funding the Red Cross with D.U.S. proceeds, said Straebel. "During the year over 100 servicemen were aided through Red Cross case work, financial assistance, emergency leave request and verification, counseling and other related functions," he continued.

"A total of 311 children received Certificates in swimming, and 77 persons received in-

Enrollment Up 553 At NMU

MARQUETTE — Enrollment for the fall semester at Northern Michigan University shows a 7.6 per cent increase over last year, according to figures released today by Dr. John X. Jamrich, NMU president.

Enrollment at NMU stands at 7,839, up 553 from last year's total of 7,286. This marks the 14th straight year that the school's enrollment has set a new record.

By comparison with the enrollment increase at NMU, college campuses throughout the rest of the country are estimating only a 2.9 per cent increase over totals of a year ago, according to the president.

The breakdown in enrollment by classes shows increases in the number of freshmen (2,726, up 267), juniors (1,590, up 58), seniors (1,313, up 155) and graduate students (667 up 122), while the sophomore class stands at 1,543, down 49.

An increase in students living on campus is also evident, with 4,221 presently residing in campus housing, up 9.6 per cent from last year's total of 3,852.

Jamrich stated that "the overall enrollment increase is possibly a result of the fact that Northern has the only accredited teacher training program in the Upper Peninsula." The president pointed with pride to "the greater retention rate evidenced at the upper division levels" in this year's enrollment figures.

He also took note of the 22 per cent increase in the number of graduate students attending NMU this year, saying that "this sharp increase reflects the students' interest in Northern's expanding program at the masters degree level and the plans underway for a six-year specialist program in teacher education."

Between 1955 and 1966, NMU had an enrollment increase of 24 per cent. The rate increase stood at 2.7 per cent between 1966 and 1967, and rose to 4.3 per cent from the fall of 1967 to 1968.

The enrollment figures given above do not include students served by Northern in its extension courses or in manpower training programs.

County Housing Bill Approved

Legislation introduced by Rep. D. J. Jacobetti (D-Negaunee) to enable counties to form housing commissions has been approved by both houses of the Legislature and sent to the Governor.

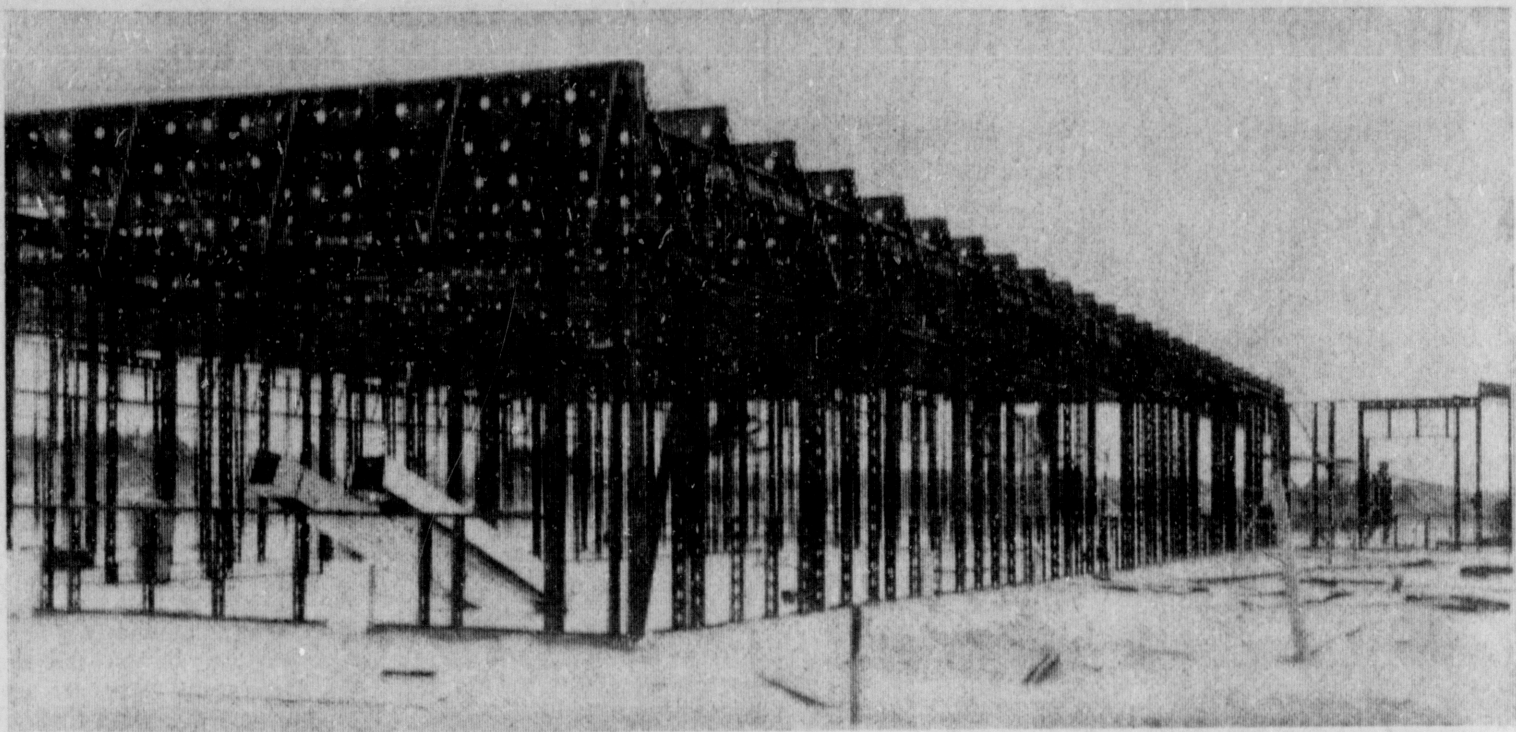

"I feel assured that the Governor will readily sign this bill into law," Jacobetti said. "It is something that has been needed for years in many parts of the state, particularly in the Upper Peninsula."

The proposed law would allow counties to organize housing commissions which would be able to acquire, construct, maintain and expand housing facilities. "This is a privilege that has long existed for cities, townships and villages, but denied counties," Jacobetti pointed out.

He explained that rural villages and townships in the Upper Peninsula seldom have the population base to allow them to form housing commissions. They have to rely on the county, as a larger unit of government, to go into needed public housing. The present law, however, does not give counties this right.

Jacobetti said that the new law would make possible better housing for families who otherwise would be unable to afford it.

"A county housing commission," he explained, "could do much to eliminate a great deal of the substandard housing that exists in the Upper Peninsula. This type of public housing would be especially beneficial to senior citizens who are usually retired and on limited fixed income. Right now, especially in rural areas, it is difficult for these older persons to find adequate housing at a price they can pay."

U.S. Agency Says No To 483 Improvement

The Upper Great Lakes Regional Commission, asked for help by the County Board of Supervisors to renovate County Rd. 483 in Garden and Fairbanks Townships, has indicated in a letter to the board that any financial assistance for the project is impossible at this time.

Alfred France, federal chairman of the regional development agency, said the commission has many important projects to support and could not consider funding County Rd. 483 improvements now, but with favorable new authorizations and appropriations it would consider funding such a road improvement project in the future.

Because of limited funds in Delta County, the Board of Supervisors has sought "outside" assistance from the State Highway Commission and the Upper Great Lakes Regional Commission to improve the road.

The State Highway Dept. has refused to add the road to its system of state trunklines.

County Rd. 483 runs from U. S. 2 in Garden Township a distance of about 27 miles to Fairport. It serves Fayette State Park, which this year had over 110,000 visitors.

The condition of the road has been described by residents of the area as deplorable, partly because of the volume of traffic to and from the park.

More people get more news from newspapers than all other sources combined.

Parochiaid? No

Gov. William Milliken, who last week unveiled his Educational Reform Commission's recommendations for schooling in Michigan, included in those reforms a provision for public assistance to non-public schools.

"We believe very strongly that the existence and strength of non-public schools can contribute to educational choice in Michigan and that educational choice is in the public interest," he said.

"The primary consideration in the debate over public aid to non-public schools must be the children," he continued. "The Commission believes that sound public policy requires the people of Michigan to recognize a measure of responsibility for providing all children with an education in non-religious subjects."

"For that reason, the Commission recommends that the Legislature approve salary support for certified lay teachers of secular subjects in non-public schools. This support would be granted according to the following plan: 50 per cent of such teachers' salaries during the next two years, and 75 per cent during the following school year. But we are recommending that in no event would this aid to non-public schools be allowed to exceed two per cent of the total school budget in Michigan."

"Under this plan, non-public schools would be subject to the same evaluation and quality controls as public schools," the governor said. "We also recommend that the Legislature appoint a committee to determine and reduce the effects of this aid on racial, ethnic or other segregation in these schools."

The governor made two points in his statement — that an educational "choice" is in the public interest and that the prime concern of the state must be for children, indicating that without public assistance to non-public schools that some children would be denied the basic right to an education.

Those conclusions are open to dispute.

An educational "choice" may be something to be desired — like allowing a college student the freedom to choose the school he believes to best fit his goals — but in a mass education program at the elementary and secondary level it simply isn't practical or wise to provide it for all of the students. And if an educational "choice" isn't offered to all students, why should it be made available to those of a particular religious faith?

As far as the suggestion that without state aid to non-public schools some children would be denied an education there is only one answer: There are no public schools in Michigan which would deny any student admission. Public facilities are available to anyone.

Proponents of parochiaid — primarily the Catholic church — argue that non-public schools save taxes, that without non-public schools the state would have to pay the bill for educating some 300,000 more children each year.

There is no question that closing all of the non-public schools in the state would cost the state more money for education, but that does not validate the argument or justify public support.

If a religious or private group — and there are other non-public schools in Michigan besides those operated by the Catholic church — believes that it is better able to educate its children than the public schools then its right to do so should be defended. But if the group believes strongly enough in its system, then it should also pay for it.

The state has a constitutional responsibility to provide education, but it has no responsibility to pay for a proliferation of educational systems. This, in itself, runs contrary to the stated purpose in Michigan of consolidating education into more efficient and better school programs. Any move toward partial or total funding of non-public schools would only tend to fragment the present system, increasing the cost not decreasing it.

Constitutionally, there are great implications.

In the United States, religious freedom is guaranteed.

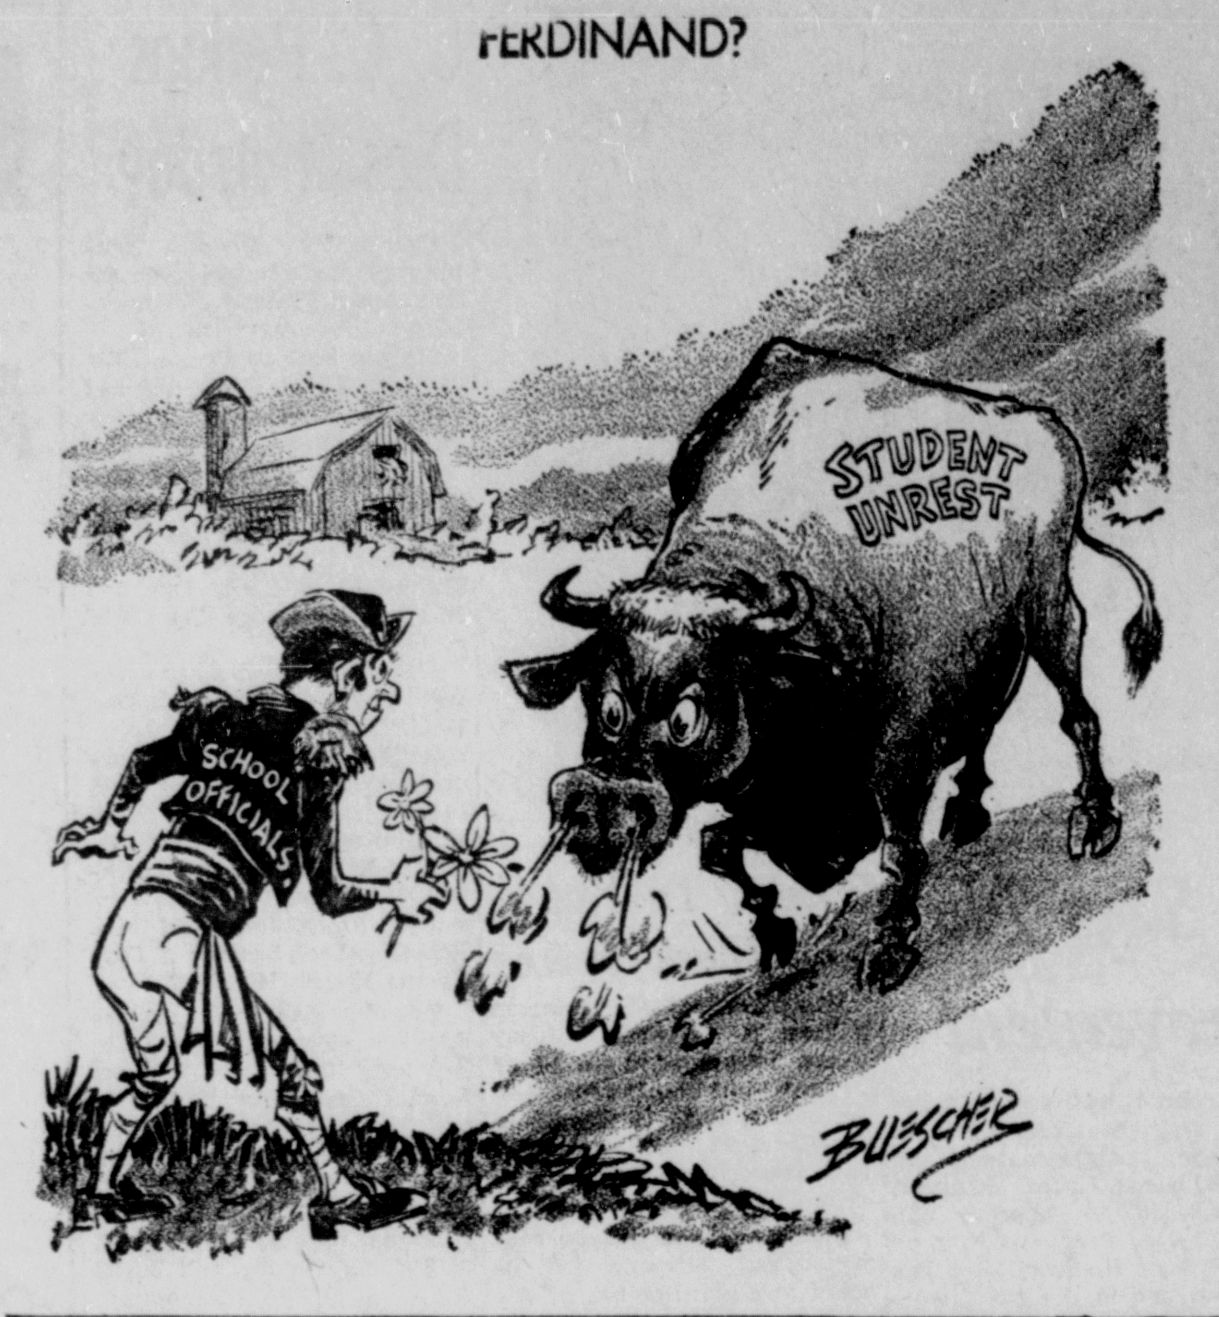

Included in that freedom is the right of an individual to contribute money toward his particular religious faith and that is reinforced by allowing tax deductions for religious contributions. But there should be nothing in the law which would require citizens to pay taxes to support religion, which is what would happen if a parochiaid measure is passed in Michigan.

Schools operated by religious groups by their very existence prove that something beyond the program of public education is a part of the curriculum. If there wasn't a religious purpose, there would be no purpose in the school. "Our school teaches the four R's: reading, 'riting, 'rithmetic and religion," said one administrator.

Teaching of religion is fine. But the public must not be required to pay for it.

Gray Campaign Results In Detroit Mayor Race

By GENE SCHROEDER
Associated Press Writer

DETROIT (AP) — A white sheriff and a black county auditor have produced a gray election campaign for mayor of Detroit.

Wayne County Sheriff Roman Gribbs and Auditor Richard Austin passed the halfway mark in the campaign this week, and both were drawing criticism for avoiding the issues.

Political observers expect the tempo to accelerate, however, before voters go to the polls Nov. 4 to elect a successor to two-term Mayor Jerome Cavanagh, onetime "boy wonder" of Detroit politics.

Cavanagh decided not to seek re-election after his image was tarnished by a series of political disasters, including the 1967 Detroit riots and a divorce court battle over custody of his eight children.

Have Newspaper Support

When Austin, 56, and Gribbs, 43, emerged as the top vote-getters in a field of 29 candidates in the Sept. 9 primary, Cavanagh and Detroit's two metropolitan daily newspapers said voters made a wise choice.

"Detroit cannot lose with these two nominees for mayor," the newspapers said editorially. Both candidates immediately pledged to wage high-level campaigns that would avoid racial overtones. Detroit's population is about 40 per cent Negro.

Unlike recent campaigns in Los Angeles and New York, the Detroit contest has not developed the "law-and-order" theme as a major issue.

Racial Overtones?

But while not blaming Gribbs directly, Austin contends that some of the sheriff's supporters are injecting racial overtones with "subtle and latent suggestions that black people are identified with crime and whites with law and order."

Gribbs has rejected the "law-and-order" tag, describing himself as a moderate who favors order and justice under the law. He has called for "firm, fair, just and humane" enforcement, more Negro police officers, stepped-up in-service training and professionalization of the force.

Austin contends that Detroit's Negroes cannot "relate" to the police department because they don't feel it is the protectorate it should be.

The black segment of the population, he says, must be made to feel that is has some voice in the department and is a "participant."

Both Criticized

Political observers recently have been rapping both candidates for failing to provide specific programs for Detroit's urban problems.

In a letter to all candidates for city offices, a moderate group of Negro leaders told the contenders this week that they have not "addressed themselves to the crucial issues affecting Detroiters."

Some critics have pointed out that although both candidates have recognized the city is facing a financial crisis, neither has come up with proposals on how to solve the problem.

There also have been complaints that Austin and Gribbs are speaking in glittering generalities about such problems as urban renewal, juvenile delinquency, low-cost housing and job opportunities.

Advisory Council?

Austin said this week that if elected he might create a 25-member advisory council of experts to meet with him regularly to consider the city's problems and devise solutions.

The experts, he said, would come from the schools, business, unions, city government and the arts and humanities.

Many observers believe Gribbs' campaign suffered a setback with the announcement this week that Councilwoman Mary Beck, a "law-and-order" candidate who finished third in

KEEP AIR CLEAN

An open letter to the Delta County Board of Supervisors:

I have lived in this area all my life and have been in business for the past 15 years, so naturally I am quite concerned about keeping our air clean.

When this area was first proclaimed to have the cleanest air in the United States I felt very proud. In fact, I was thinking seriously of having my business stationery letterhead to read: "Escanaba, Michigan—Cleanest Air in the U.S." Like everyone else I took our good, clean, fresh air for granted. And now this clean air is being threatened.

You five men can help to put Escanaba on the map, and at the same time, you will be making history for our area. But, no doubt, you have this thought in mind — Will it hurt me if I go against industry? Believe me, it will hurt you the rest of your life if we have to put up with a smelly, dusty atmosphere! We had better wake up and do something now or in the next few years we will all wish we were living in the Canada wilderness.

Hundreds of retirees are moving into this area with many more to come. We do not want to chase thousands of people out, plus making it miserable for thousands now living in the area. And how about yourself? Will you move after living here all your life? You will be doing the greatest favor you will ever do for anyone if you pass this ordinance as it was presented by the Save Our Air group for clean air.

I have never written a public letter before, but I know that as an individual, I am just one of many who would like to speak out.

I mean no offense to any of you; I am just expressing my views. I feel deeply concerned about the thought of moving after living here all my life. My son will soon be out of college and plans to make his home in this area with his family, but I know he will change his mind like many others, if our air is foul from industry. I feel I must fight for the things most important to me — my family, my home, my business which is my livelihood, and our great outdoors.

I hope my letter has helped impress upon you the importance of passing this ordinance. "Let's keep Escanaba and the surrounding areas as the area with the Cleanest Air in the United States."

the primary race, would wage a "write-in" campaign.

Most of the 71,000 votes she received in the primary had been expected to go to the sheriff.

Gribbs scoffed at the idea that Miss Beck's entry would hurt him.

Unions Divided

"Traditionally, write-in votes have been unsuccessful," he said, "and I disagree with the idea that she will receive enough votes to upset my campaign."

Union endorsement have been split between the two major candidates, with Gribbs getting the nod from several AFL-CIO locals and Austin being backed by the two major independents—the United Auto Workers and the Teamsters Union.

In his bid to become Detroit's first Negro mayor, Austin also has picked up support from an unexpected source — Walter Shemie, the fourth-place primary candidate who four years ago opposed Mayor Cavanagh in the runoff election.

Shemie is a white businessman normally associated with homeowner associations.

The contest is now considered by some observers as a tossup.

Poor Golf Game Can Lead To Retirement

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — It is always a wistful moment when power changes hands in a great corporation.

So the two of them were having a private champagne party of their own before they opened the door to the board room and told the board what it was to do.

What the board was to do was to kick the older of the two up to the chairmanship and turn the presidency, the real take-over position, to the younger one.

"Well, M.J., I never really thought this day would dawn," said the older of the two, taking a deep sip of the bubbly.

"I didn't really foresee it either, P.J.," said the younger.

They looked at each other thoughtfully then, silently measuring the differences between them—differences involving years and sex.

P. J. Short, Heavy-Set

P.J. was short and heavy-set and balding and would never see 65 again. M.J. was slender and attractive, but a few threads of early gray in her hair indicated she would hardly be able to claim she was 30 more than another year or two.

"P.J., tell me the truth, do you really mind turning the job over to me?" asked M.J.

"Well, in a way I do, M.J., and in a way I don't," said P.J., staring moodily out the window.

Two Big Concerns

"At my time of life my two big concerns are my golf game and the good of the corporation. My golf game has been slipping lately, and I'm the only one who can really give it the extra attention it needs."

"On the other hand, the corporation is in good shape, and I don't think it needs me particularly. As a matter of fact, it really doesn't need me at all."

"A fresh hand at the tiller will probably make it sail even better. Things are changing rapidly in the world, more rapidly than I want them to, but you've got a real feeling for change and can adjust to it easily. Frankly, that's a big reason why I hand-

1. You begin with nine tricks, but if you try to ruff a diamond in dummy to acquire your tenth, you may run into all kinds of complications and go down.

Actually, there is a simple way of playing the hand that assures the contract if the trumps are divided either 3-2 or 4-1. You can force the opponents to establish your tenth trick for you.

Win the club lead with the ace and draw the adverse trumps, discarding a club from dummy if necessary.

Now lead a club from your hand. If North follows low, finesse the eight. Even if South started with four or five clubs to the Q-10, he cannot stop you from making the contract whatever he returns.

Suppose he leads a diamond. Follow low from your hand, win North's jack or queen with the king, discard a heart on the king of clubs and then lead a diamond to the nine. Win or lose, the most the defenders can take is a heart, a diamond and a club.

Suppose South returns a heart instead. Follow low and, after North wins with the king or ace, establish a heart trick by conceding the queen. This line of play also brings you to ten tricks. All you lose is a club and two hearts.

2. The best method of play, after drawing trumps and cashing the ace of clubs, is to lead a club and finesse the jack. If the finesse wins, you're home, so let's assume it loses to the queen and a club is returned.

After discarding a diamond on dummy's third club, cash the A-K of diamonds and ruff a diamond. If the suit is divided 3-3, dummy's last diamond becomes your twelfth trick. If the diamonds are divided unevenly, you still have the spade finesse to fall back on.

This succession of plays offers the maximum number of chances to make the contract. Of course, all three possibilities may fail, in which case you go down one, but if this happens, you can always try Canasta for a while.

Girl, 18, Concerned Over High Date Ratio

Dear Ann Landers: I am a girl 18 and have been told I am very attractive. Recently I took inventory of my social life and had to admit something is wrong. My date turnover is extremely high. I get asked out a lot but the fellows don't hang around long.

Here's the usual pattern. On the first date the boy is almost always mannerly and respectful. On the second date it's a different story. He feels he has wasted enough time and makes it plain that he expects sex. This is where I flunk. Sometimes the guy figures I'm playing hard to get and he'll ask for a third date. When he discovers I meant what I said I don't see him again.

I've been called everything from a tease to a mental case. Friday night a 22-year-old pre-med student informed me that I would probably have a nervous breakdown because of my "mental block."

I realize this is asking a lot, Ann, but could you devote a column to letters from the young men of this country? Do they really want a girl to give in on the second date or are they just testing? Is virginity outmoded? How do the fellows feel about these questions?—Ice Cube In Wyoming

Dear Cube: Let's ask 'em. I'll print the best letters.

Dear Ann Landers: I feel sorry for the poor slob who pulled a cocktail mixer out of his pocket and found a hairnet attached to it. He turned red as a radish and swore he didn't know how it got there. His friends cracked up. His wife was furious. You suggested he'd been framed. I'd like to offer a better explanation.

I'm a waitress who can tell you from experience that hairnets are the spookiest things in the world. Several years ago a law was passed making it compulsory for all women who handle food to wear hairnets. Hairnets have a way of disappearing right off your head. I've lost dozens and never knew they were gone until I was told. They get caught on rings, buttons, cupboard knobs, pencils, silverware, and — yes — on plastic cocktail mixers, which is how that poor sonuvagun got into trouble through no fault of his own. I hope his wife sees this and gives him a break.—Witness For The Defense

Dear Wit: You make a great deal of sense. Thanks for stepping forward. If I were the judge I'd say "Not guilty—case dismissed."

Dear Ann Landers: My handwriting is the worst I've ever seen. It is illegible and looks like the scribbling of a child. Because of this, I type all letters, invitations, thank you notes, and condolence messages.

Last week a friend criticized me because I had typed a letter to a mutual friend whose husband passed away. She said it is better not to send any message than a typed one. Will you express your views on this subject?—Rozelle

Dear Roz: The old hidebound rules of etiquette are fast bowing to common sense. And I say it's about time. It is better to send a typed note that can be read than a handwritten one which is illegible.

Fast Autos Target:

Insurance Higher
On The 'Hot Ones'

DETROIT (AP) —“New Mercury Cyclone. Password for Action. We made it hot (429 V-8). You can make it scream.”

“Nobody’s more serious about performance than Dr. Oldsmobile.”

“Charger R-T... That’s no kiddie car. Take it to the strip where the men are.”

With advertising copy like this and pictures of their cars whirling around racing ovals, the auto industry pitches the speed, performance and power of many of its models.

Stiff Rate Increase

The high-performance car, promoted with the racing car image, has drawn criticism from at least one insurance company which has announced a stiff rate increase for the “hot” cars.

Other major insurance companies were reported taking a close look at the decision announced by Dean Jeffers, president of Nationwide Mutual Insurance Co., to up the rates on these cars.

Too Much Power

Jeffers told a Senate subcommittee Wednesday the hot cars are racking up 56 per cent larger insurance losses than standard cars. The high-performance cars “are not conducive to moderate, defensive driving,” Jeffers said. “Indeed, they are powered well above the needs of the prudent defensive driver and above the traffic capacity of most streets and roads.”

Subjects of the rate increase are cars such as Corvette, Mustang Mach I, Pontiac GTO, Oldsmobile 442, Plymouth Road Runner, Dodge Charger 500, AMX, Mercury Cougar Eliminator and Malibu SS 396.

All of these use race-track performance as a sales pitch—the names themselves smack of speed and racing: Mach I is a term meaning “speed of sound,” Eliminator is a drag racing class.

Using the “win on Sunday, sell on Monday” approach outlined in a 1968 Ford press release, the automakers aim their hot car pitch primarily at youthful drivers.

Least Defensive Drivers

A recent University of Michigan study showed that drivers in the 18-to-25 age bracket are the “least defensive” and “most overconfident” behind the wheel.

Jeffers’ criticism, similar to earlier blasts leveled by such critics as Washington lawyer Ralph Nader and University of Illinois professor Jeffrey O’Connell, touched a tender nerve in the headquarters of Detroit’s auto firms.

No top auto executives were talking for publication Thursday, and spokesmen for Ford, General Motors, Chrysler Corp. and American Motors all said “We will have our say before the committee.”

Insurance Quiz Likely

The automakers are set to appear next week in Washington, and a GM spokesman said “the Washington meet is primarily for testimony about costs of car repairs but I imagine there will be some questions asked about car insurance.”

The new furor over the hot cars is similar to the outcry in the mid-1950’s when the national traffic death toll climbed sharply and led to outcries for a lessening of horsepower.

All four major automakers signed a declaration in 1957, promising to refrain from competitive racing and from suggesting speed in advertising.

Pitcher Ted Abernathy of the Chicago Cubs broke in with the Washington Senators in 1955 after pitching in only 44 minor league games.

Art Exhibit Opens Today

Escanaba's new Art Association, announcing its first Art Exhibit, proudly reports that more than 50 paintings and drawings have been received and are now hanging in the Mediacenter at Doctors Park.

The public is invited to view them in the exhibit that opens today and will continue to Oct. 25, both day and evening, said Mrs. John Sheldner, chairman of the exhibit. The pictures may be seen in the Mediacenter lobby, the halls, and the dining room.

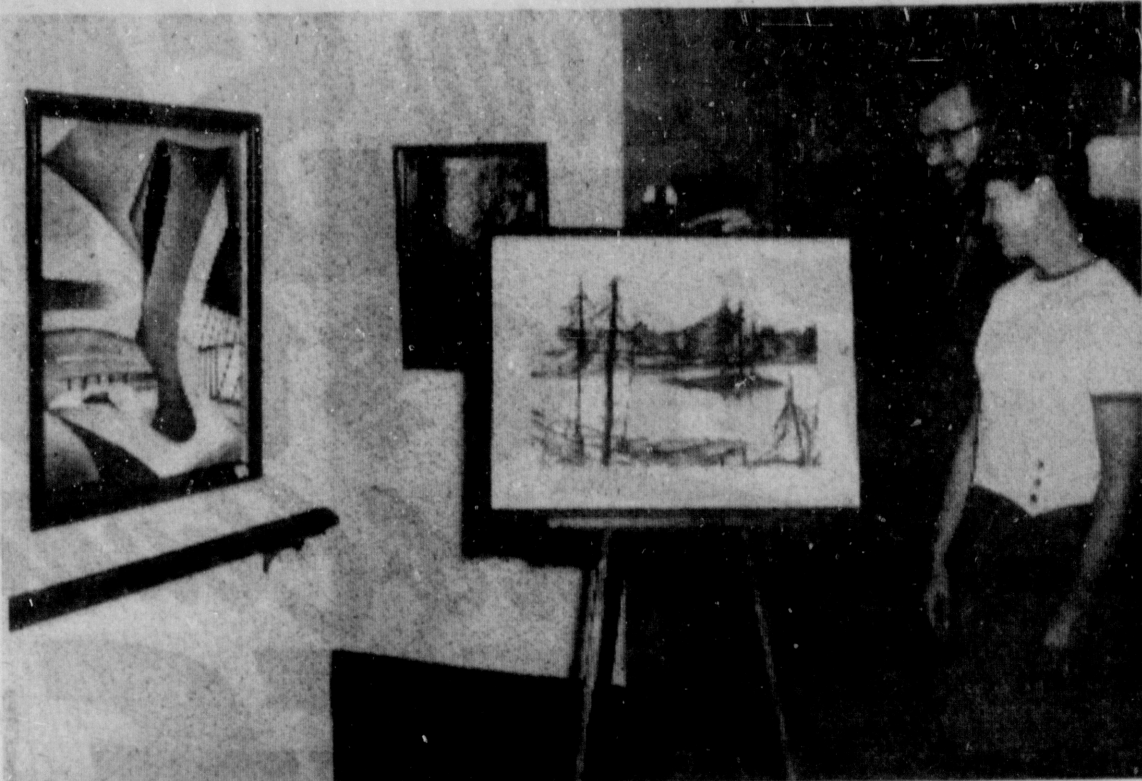

All works in the show have been produced by artists of the Bay de Noc area, and represent a great variety of subject matter and of materials and techniques.

There are a number of local scenes, representations of woods and waters, portrait sketches, flowers and other still-life studies, done in many different media such as water color, oil, pastel, acrylic, and others.

Many ways of working are shown, ranging from realism to abstract works, which makes for an exhibit of great vitality and interest.

The new Art Association will meet in the dining room at the Mediacenter on Sunday, Oct. 12, at 2 o'clock. All artists and persons interested in furthering the arts are cordially invited.

Plans for future activities will be made, and Joe Hebert will be there to advise the artists concerning drawings for the 1969 Escanaba City Calendar.

THERE'S GREAT VARIETY of subject and treatment in the Art Association exhibit at the Mediacenter, reports Mrs. John Sheldner, exhibit chairman. Mrs. Sheldner and Joe Heller, Mediacenter administrator, preview some of the more than 50 drawings and paintings in the show. (Daily Press Photo)

Wabash Cannonball Gets Help, Still Late

DETROIT (AP) — Sister Ann Joachim, a scrappy, 67-year-old Dominican nun, is credited with keeping the Wabash Cannonball running, but not even she can make it run on time.

Sister Ann, at various times a tennis champion, stunt flyer and lawyer, went before the Interstate Commerce Commission last April when the Norfolk & Western Railway sought to drop the fabled train.

The former Alice VerDow was born in Escanaba and was the daughter of the late Anthony and Anna VerDow. She attended Escanaba schools.

She was married to Lawrence Gantler July 31, 1922 in Menominee. The couple came to Sheboygan in 1922 and lived there until 1939, when they moved to Milwaukee. They moved to Brookfield in 1962.

Survivors include her husband; one son, Don Lee of Denver, Colo.; one daughter, Mrs. Richard (Marjorie) Gantler of Brookfield; two sisters, four grandchildren and one great grandchild.

Funeral services were conducted Oct. 2 at Our Savior Lutheran Church with the Rev. E. Winters officiating. Burial was in Wildwood Cemetery.

Additional Tax 'Shape Up Or Ship Out' Augenstein Tells Board

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Russell B. Long, chairman of the powerful Finance Committee, predicts the Senate will vote even bigger relief for the U.S. taxpayer than provided in a House measure already criticized by President Nixon as too costly.

Nixon has indicated he might veto a tax reform bill that wasn't trimmed below what the House provided and any citizen reaction would be intensified if the Senate approved an even better break for individual wage earners.

Long's forecast was backed up somewhat by the senior Republican on the committee, Sen. John J. Williams of Delaware, who told a reporter he would not be surprised if the Senate goes beyond the House measure.

Several senators of both parties are urging the committee to increase the present $600 personal income tax exemption by at least $100. A few have asked that it be raised to $1,000 or $1,200.

It was learned this issue came up tentatively Thursday at the committee's first closed-door meeting on the House-passed bill.

Treasury officials who were present strongly resisted any such move. They said a $100 hike in exemptions would cost more than $3 billion in revenue, a $400 increase $12 billion, and a $600 increase more than $17 billion.

The House bill would give individuals $9.2 billion of relief and offset this with $6.8 billion of new revenue from various reform provisions.

Nixon said this $2.4 billion revenue loss was too great. He proposed a series of changes which would reduce the deficit to $1.3 billion.

LANSING — Leroy Augenstein has challenged the State Board of Education to "either shape up or ship out."

"Unless we buckle down at the next meeting," Augenstein said, "and bring our calendar up to date, and unless we . . . wrestle with the elements of the governor's reform package on an urgent basis, then I propose that we all resign as soon as feasible."

In a scathing memo to the State Board of Education, Augenstein, himself a member, wrote, "Some of you should be happy now that Superintendent of Public Instruction Ira Polley has resigned. Frankly, I am amazed he took the abuse for so long. However, his leaving will not magically remove the problems facing Michigan education nor make them one bit easier to solve."

Who Will Lead?

"My major concern right now," Augenstein continued, "is who will provide the needed leadership for our 2,000,000 pupils? . . . I state quite bluntly that I think our Board has not provided leadership in Michigan education."

"After the last meeting," Augenstein added, "I can only conclude that the public is not getting its money's worth . . . I was dumfounded that more than three hours of the 7 1/2 hour closed executive session (Oct. 1, in Detroit) involved bellyaching by four of you that Ira Polley's name was on more press releases than were yours. "A major defect of this Board . . . has been its inability to take the lead in facing up to crucial issues," Augenstein contended, ". . . all too often (it) has been dragged along kicking and screaming by events or the legislature."

'Dodged Responsibility'

Illustrating just one of the seven areas where he charged the Board has dodged responsibility, Augenstein stressed that "we have had numerous teacher strikes for three years . . . in spite of my repeated attempts this Board has refused to face up by even helping to facilitate negotiations."

Augenstein concluded, "As we found by observing the Governor's Reform Commission, a group of part-time citizens can resolve huge issues in a surprisingly brief span of time if they are dedicated and properly organized. In particular, they showed the kind of leadership that this Board has not—they focused on crucial issues without either disregarding or getting bogged down in details. Unless we now do the same, the best thing we can do is to resign en masse and let the Governor appoint a group who can do the job. . . ."

Homecoming Set Saturday At Bark River

Homecoming and Parent's Day at Bark River-Harris High School has been set for Saturday, Oct. 11, with the Bark River-Harris-Pembine game beginning at 2:30. Homecoming activities began Monday with the decorating of floats.

Queen candidates are Kathy Fisk, Betty Lu Krause, Barbara Derouin and Connie Adams. The court consists of juniors, Mary Sharkey and Carol Ashby. Cheerleaders are Lynn Bell and Linda Olson.

Homecoming King is Russell Priot and escorts for the queen's court are Dan Veaser, Tim Fournier, Donald Strahl, Len Olson and Tony Westlake. Cheerleader escorts are Tom Shiverski and Joe Shiverski.

The activities Saturday will begin with a parade to the Bark River-Harris High School at 12:30 and the queen will be crowned at half-time during the game. The week's activities will be concluded with a dance on Saturday night from 8:30 to 11:30, with "The Porridge," providing the music.

Coho Fishing Is On The Upswing

The percentage of successful coho anglers in Little Bay de Noc and the Whitefish River has increased during the past week according to the recent survey conducted by the Department of Natural Resources (DNR).

A total of 48 fishermen surveyed caught 15 coho, one rainbow (11 1/2 pounds), and one large brown trout. The biggest fish weighed 15 1/2 pounds.

At Thompson, rough water has virtually nullified fishing activity for the past three days. "Before the rough seas, anglers here had fairly good success," reports resort owner Georgia Osterhout. She said one fisherman did very well trolling at night Monday and Tuesday. The largest fish caught at Thompson this week also weighed 15 1/2 pounds.

Ypsi Darkened By Power Failure

YPSILANTI (AP) — A power failure cut electrical service to the entire city of Ypsilanti and some surrounding areas early today.

Ypsilanti police said the blackout began when a transformer blew at 12:40 a.m. Power was restored to most of the city's 21,000 residents by 1:45 and crews from Detroit Edison worked through the night to complete restoration.

Police said three stores were broken into during the blackout but that no serious incidents occurred.

The cause of the power failure was not immediately known.

Commercial Fishermen Dislike New DNR 'Bait'

County Sportsman's Club, termed the plan "farming on water as you would farm on land."

"We can't win a popularity contest on this issue," admitted Dr. Howard Tanner, head of the Michigan State University department of natural resources.

Industry Doomed? "Pesticide problems, labor problems and the age of the fishermen have doomed the industry," he said. "You have to take steps even if you step on someone's toes."

Wayne Tody, head of the department's fish division, termed the plan the next logical step in rehabilitation of the Great Lakes fishery.

First came control of the sea lamprey, he said, next came the stocking of trout and salmon and now this investment must be protected.

Louis Michalski of Detroit, vice president of the Michigan United Conservation Clubs, termed the plan the most effective way of improving Great Lakes fish management. It should be flexible, however, he added.

"Please don't do anything until you get the money to pay for the commercial fishing equipment phased out of use," was the final plea of Roy Jensen of Escanaba, representing the Michigan Fish Producers Association.

Desegregation Speedup Seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court may be ready to scrap the "all deliberate speed" doctrine and order the prompt desegregation of public schools everywhere in the South.

This is the clear import of the court's announcement Thursday that it will hear arguments Oct. 23 on an appeal by the NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund in a Mississippi school case.

The fund is challenging a delay granted 222 schools by the U.S. Court of Appeals in New Orleans last August. The Nixon administration had counseled delay and opposed the fund's request for an early Supreme Court decision.

The call for argument is the first major action by the high court under Warren E. Burger, the new chief justice, and must be viewed as a rebuff to the administration.

The court may end up with a ruling limited to the school situation in Mississippi. But it is more likely to follow the advice of Justice Hugo L. Black and determine whether the time has run out on compliance with the 1954 ruling that racially separate public schools are unconstitutional.

If the court insists on immediate desegregation throughout the South the ruling will rival in importance any of the last several years.

Burger's predecessor, Chief Justice Earl Warren, enunciated the "all deliberate speed" doctrine in 1955. The somewhat elastic phrase recognized that southern school districts needed time to overcome administrative difficulties but ordered them to move ahead with desegregation.

Since then, the court has regularly disapproved various approaches of southern school districts that appeared to accomplish only token desegregation.

Income Rises For H&B Corp.

LOS ANGELES, Calif. — H & B American Corp., owner of American Cablevision of Escanaba, reports that for its fiscal year ended July 31, income before extraordinary credits increased 61 per cent to $1,449,345 compared to July 31, 1968, results of $902,010 on a restated basis (to reflect poolings of interests during the year).

Gross revenues of $14,192,544 were higher by 12 per cent when related to the fiscal 1968 figure of $12,651,370.

William M. Jennings, chairman, announced that the unaudited net income for fiscal 1969 was $1,449,345 as compared to the 1968 restated figure of $1,640,623 (also unaudited). He pointed out that the 1969 net income figure did not include an extraordinary credit and that the 1968 federal income tax provision was lower.

The 1968 net income figure includes an extraordinary credit of $738,613 created by a federal income tax reduction of $140,000 due to operating losses carried forward and a gain of $598,613 from the sale of a CATV system.

Engaged Couple Reunited After 52 Years

NOVI (AP) — Isabell Livingston is taking a lot of kidding from friends about her fiance—the man she divorced 52 years ago.

Isabell, 76, and Walter Aubrey, 77, ended their first marriage in 1917 after only one year together but they figure their second marriage will work.

"We're smarter now, we're not kids anymore," she says. Isabell never married after the divorce but Walter went into the construction business in New York, married and raised three children. A widower, he's now the grandfather of nine.

The engaged couple were reunited by a pure chance. A New York friend of Walter moved to Florida — next door to a friend of Isabell. After a series of letters and "personals" in a local newspaper, Walter found Isabell.

There was a telephone call in April, then Walter came to Novi for a visit. "He gave me a $500 ring and told me to think about it," she recalls.

"He must have liked me pretty good, because he looked me up again, didn't he?"

Last week Walter returned to Novi, helped Isabell dispose of her home and personal belongings and this week they were on their way to update New York where Isabell reports "He's got a beautiful home... I'd rather fish than eat and Walter's place is right near the lake."

"They talked of a church wedding there. Then, after they've settled down a bit, 'We've got all kinds of trips to take together,'" Walter says.

Isabell calls the new marriage "just a companionship thing." She says "the furnace is out." But, adds Walter, "Maybe it's just banked."

Fall: A Time To Enjoy The Colors

This is the time of the year when North Country residents receive an extra dividend from Mother Nature. We're referring to the fall color show—a spectacular event and particularly so this season.

The curtain already is being pulled up in the area, and color viewers should enjoy near maximum color this week. Peak color period for the Upper Peninsula is expected during the middle of the month.

Actually, fall foliage in an area broadly ranging from Canada's Maritime Provinces to the Ozarks and from the Great Smokies to the Rockies creates a fine color display unparalleled anywhere in the world. But the most brilliant show is put on by Mother Nature in this region.

This eye-catching pageant in full color is at its best in portions of the United States and Canada because these areas have just the right combination of tree types, climate and weather. An essential ingredient is a great variety of deciduous trees, the kind whose broad leaves turn color and drop in autumn. The majority of these are hardwoods, and they are most abundant in the North Country.

The coloration process works best where there is a real Indian summer, such as the Upper Peninsula is proud to have. We refer to the clear, bright days and moderately cool nights in proper proportion. Reduced daylight hours, not drops in temperature, are said to set off the changes in leaves. The shortening of days signals a tree to slow down its growth and enter a dormant period.

The roots respond by curtailing the flow of sap—a combination of water and nutrients—to the leaves, which slowly lose their firm connection with the twigs and the branches.

At the same time, things begin happening to chlorophyll, the green pigment in leaves. No longer renewed by the tree's circulation, it begins to decompose and bleach away. Then pigments the chlorophyll have hidden can be seen and have their brief period of glory.

Yellow and orange leaves get their color from two pigments, carotene and anthophyll. Reds and purples are produced by a group of pigments called anthocyanins. Combinations of these agents bring about variegated hues in a single tree.

Color patterns change almost daily as autumn progresses in the Upper Peninsula. Reds and purples turn to blend with the browns of the dying leaves.

Finally, most of the leaves reach the ground, either falling of their own weight or losing their slight hold with a breeze.

In most areas they either remain on the ground and decay or are hauled off. In others, field and laboratory tests by U. S. Geological Survey scientists suggest, leaves may create a localized water pollution problem when they fall into drinking water sources and decompose.

Whether you enjoy bird hunting, or simply walking in the woods, or pleasure riding in the country, look about you—the U. P.'s fall colors will present a dazzling picture.

Demos Blaming Hare For State Party Dilemma

LANSING (AP) — Michigan Democratic Party Chairman James McNeely has blamed Secretary of State James Hare for the current financial crisis facing state and local party organizations.

"I deeply regret that Hare has decided not to keep his $50,000 commitment to the Democratic Party budget in 1969. His decision, coming at this point in the year, creates a critical budget situation for the state party," McNeely said.

McNeely has launched an emergency fund raising drive and predicted that needed "loyal" Democrats.

The Michigan Branch Managers Association Executive Board, the political patronage arm of the Secretary of State's office, last week decided to renege on its pledge.

William N. Hettinger, Hare's deputy, said the executive board decided to use the $50,000 to State Civil Service Commission and their employees under civil service.

However, other sources said the real reason for the withholding of funds was an effort to discredit McNeely, who has been reported to be among the Democratic nominations for Secretary of State.

Hare has announced he will not seek reelection.

"At the beginning of the year his (Hare's) budget commitment amounted to only about 10 per cent of the budget, but now, with only three months of the year left, it constitutes most of our budgeted, uncollected income," McNeely said.

"We are now making plans for several fund raising activities which we believe will allow us to maintain our staff and other operations at their current level for the remainder of 1969," McNeely added.

Deputies Fix Up Prisoners' Bus

DETROIT (AP) — A number of Wayne County sheriff's deputies have spent some 200 off-duty hours restoring a 1934, 60-passenger school bus and are black and white vehicle.

"We anticipate something less than the happy squeals of drench from the new passengers, but the deputies have done their best to transform the vehicle into a comfortable sleek piece of machinery," said Franz Heintz, an administrative assistant to the county sheriff.

The bus, purchased from the Wayne School District, will be used to haul prisoners between jails.

Escanaba Area Public Schools

1219 N. 19th Street — Escanaba, Michigan 49829

The 1968-69 school year commenced with the Escanaba Area Public School District facing a financial crisis. Increasing operation costs called for additional funds, but extra voted millage elections had failed four times during the previous year. A fifth election was called for August 19, 1968. When it failed, the Board of Education reluctantly took steps to reduce costs by reducing custodial and secretarial staffs, by cutting out new equipment purchases and reducing other program costs, and by eliminating the entire transportation program. The school year began without any buses on the road.

In answer to the violent reaction of the public to the budget cuts, particularly the elimination of transportation, the Board decided to restore them and go to the people a sixth time on November 5, 1968. The issue was public and five parochial schools in the community, the cost of the program to be reimbursed by the State and year, this approval held promise for a much improved financial position for the following year.

The official enrollment for the 1968-69 school year was 4652 students, an increase of 55 over the previous year's 4597. However, just one member was added to the staff, that being a speech therapist to serve the 12 year, this approval held promise for a much improved financial position for the following year.

After the year had progressed several weeks, overloaded classrooms in the Wells and Soo Hill buildings required that an additional teacher be employed for each building and unused space be converted into an additional classroom in each. Also, about a dozen fifth graders were transported to smaller rooms at the Webster School because of the overloading at Wells.

The rising costs of education can best be demonstrated by the following figures. The operating costs per student for the past several years have increased as follows:

	1963-64	1966-67	1967-68	1968-69 (past year)
$411	$316	$457	$507	$507
$333	$333	$333	$333	$333
$341	$341	$341	$341	$341

The anticipated figure for the year just past was $537, but it was reduced by means of the cuts mentioned earlier. The anticipated figure for the new 1969-70 school year is $563 even with a budget which has been reduced for the purpose of getting the district back to a completely solvent position.

There were few changes in the instructional program during the 1968-69 school year. Because of the lack of teachers, the district did not operate the Kennedy School nor was it able to continue its program for the mentally handicapped at the junior high. Through the availability of an additional $38,000 in special funds from Section 3 of last year's State Aid Act an experimental program in Continual Progress was instituted at the Washington School. These funds will not be available for the 1969-70 school year, but the program will be continued on a restricted basis. Other special programs were instituted in other buildings—particularly at the Webster School and the high school—but without budget. These programs, and others, will be continued, but again without budget. Three special programs for pre-school, elementary, and junior high children were continued with funds available through Title I of the Elementary-Secondary Education Act.

Since the spring of 1968 saw the completion of three-year negotiated contracts with both the professional and non-professional employees of the school district, formal negotiations were not necessary during the 1968-69 year just completed.

In assessing the current needs of the district, they can be included in three major headings:

- FINANCIAL — The passage of the extra operational millage in November, 1968, plus the improved State Aid provided for the current year means that the end of the current year should show the school district in the best financial position for some time. However, this year will bring the expiration of 9.4 of millage unless the State radically changes its support for schools.
- BUILDINGS — The high school building is becoming seriously overcrowded as are some of the elementary buildings — namely Wells, Soo Hill, and Franklin. The problem at the high school is being partially and temporarily solved by the adding of a seventh class period this year. The elementary situations are also being partially and temporarily solved by the reopening of the old Jefferson School and transporting Wells children to the Webster program will be the answer.
- PROGRAM — Whereas the Escanaba Area Public Schools have a strong traditional type of program, particularly strong in college preparation at the high school, taught by a strong faculty using a reasonably complete and up to date supply of materials and equipment, yet changes and additions are going to be necessary if we are to keep pace with education in the seventies. More attention must be given to vocational programs at the secondary level as well as enriched offerings in other areas. More individualizing of instruction must be accomplished at all levels. More attention must be given to the health, physical, and emotional needs of our children.

In summary, the Escanaba Area Public School District is today in reasonably good health and growing. However, periodic vitamin injections are needed and the attention of the doctor (the electorate) probably will be needed in the not too distant future.

Black Militant Waves Big Club

DETROIT (AP) — Black militant Robert Williams says he will call for a massive world-wide protest if he is extradited from Michigan to North Carolina to face an eight-year-old kidnap charge.

Williams, who returned to the United States last month after a self-imposed exile in Cuba, China and Tanzania, said he plans to fight the extradition in Michigan first, however.

Free On Bail

Williams, 44, is free on $11,000 bail after coming to Detroit aboard a special Trans World Airlines flight from London on which he and his lawyers were the only passengers. The special flight was arranged when no airline would agree to carry him on a scheduled trip.

Williams was arrested on a 1961 federal warrant charging interstate flight to avoid prosecution in North Carolina immediately on his arrival here and also was turned over to Michigan officials in connection with the North Carolina warrants.

Court Hearing Set

A state court hearing on the extradition request was set for Nov. 12 in Detroit.

North Carolina officials Thursday made the formal request to extradite him.

The president of the black separatist Republic of New Africa said Thursday night, "I don't see how Gov. (William) Milliken of Michigan can support the Ku Klux Klan in its persecution of a black freedom fighter whose only crime is to struggle for the total emancipation of black Americans." The RNA seeks five southern states for a separate black nation.

Extradition Plans

Williams had just received word the state of North Carolina had begun to seek his extradition to face trial on a charge of kidnapping a white couple in Monroe, North Carolina, in 1961.

"I plan to fight the extradition," Williams said, "But if I am extradited I'm going to fight in Union County (North Carolina)."

"I'm going to make a worldwide appeal for financial support to fight in court. I'm going to appeal for demonstrations at American embassies abroad by people who believe in justice all over the world," He said.

Monroe One Target

"I'm going to call for a campaign at Monroe—for thousands of people to go there... to disrupt its racist way of life."

Williams added he has already had offers of free legal aid from lawyers in California, New York and Georgia, but said his defense team will be headed by RNA first vice president Milton Henry of Pontiac, Mich. The RNA's announced goal is to build a separate government in five southern states.

GM Agrees To Replace Truck Camper Wheels

DETROIT (AP) — Acting under federal pressure, General Motors Corp. said Thursday it would replace without cost the wheels of 1960-65 GMC and Chevrolet pickup trucks on which camper - types have been installed.

GM said the decision was approved by a federal highway administrator as a basis for ending an investigation into the three-piece 15-inch wheels on the 200,000 vehicles with such wheels have special bodies installed.

National Highway Safety Bureau engineers originally concluded that wheels on the trucks were defective. However, GM said it presented test data and other evidence to show the safety hazard was not caused by defective wheels.

The danger results instead from overloading the trucks by installing special bodies, GM said, adding the company does not consider itself under an obligation to replace the wheels.

It said the wheels are adequate for pick-up trucks without campers as long as the maximum load capacity is not exceeded.

A letter is being sent to owners this week, announcing that the wheels would be changed on vehicles which have special camper-type bodies, GM said.

The giant automaker first advised owners in late May that there was a risk of wheel failure and advised them to replace wheels at their own expense.

However, GM Thursday said if an owner purchased new wheels because of the May 28 warning letter, he can be repaid by contacting his local dealer.

GM also said it would replace the wheels of the trucks which have campers installed sometime in the future.

REAR OF HOUSE shows back end of breezeway, open terrace, downstairs porch accessible from the family room and the upstairs porch accessible from the master bedroom.

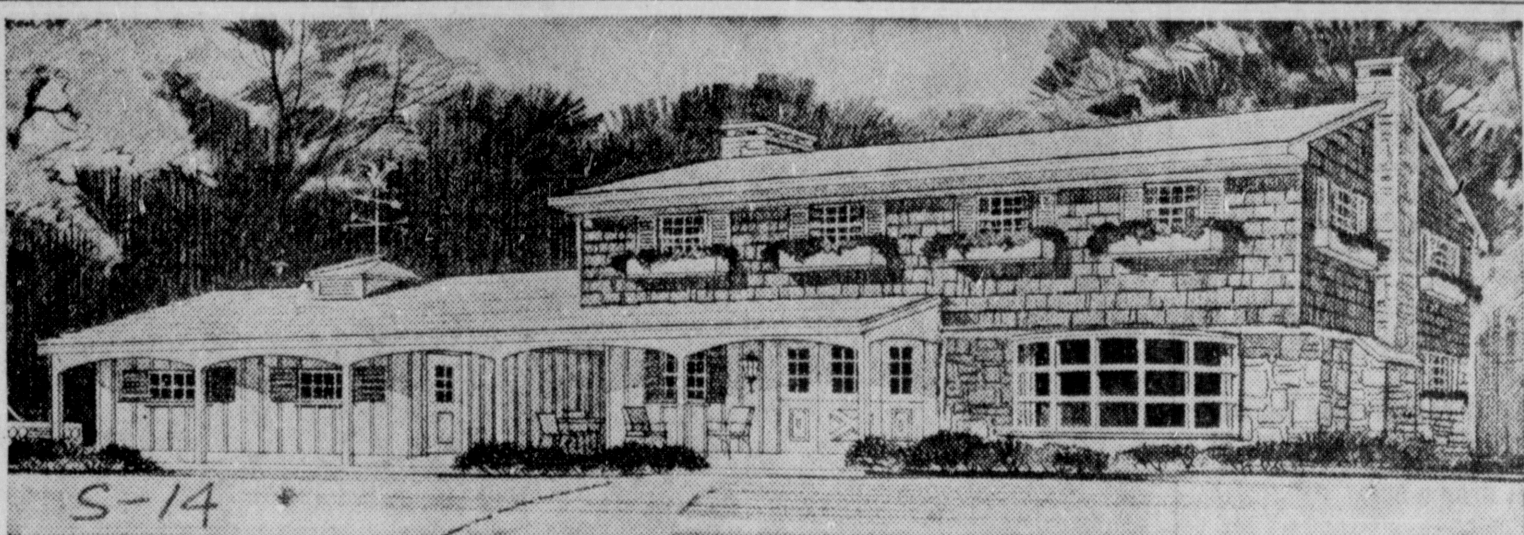

first floor plan

second floor plan

FLOOR PLANS: Informal living is made convenient in this arrangement, with sunken family room, front and rear porches, terrace and breezeway occupying almost as much space as the living room, dining room, kitchen, foyer and laundry.

FIVE-BEDROOM COLONIAL has imposing appearance, with double chimneys, effective combination of wood and stone and an unusually long covered front porch, stretching from front entranceway past breezeway and across the two-car garage.

Outdoor Living Stressed

By ANDY LANG

As land for housing becomes increasingly scarce, it becomes more and more important that outdoor living space be concentrated rather than dispersed.

In this two-story Colonial, designed for a large family, there are several spacious outdoor areas for relaxing, playing and dining. Yet all are within overall dimensions of 77' 9" by 33' 11", figures that also include the house and two-car garage.

Architect Rudolph A. Marten has accomplished this by extending the front porch 56', providing a large breezeway at the back of which is a terrace, placing a rear porch off the sunken family room, and giving the master bedroom on the second floor a separate porch. Plenty of space here for gracious outdoor living!

The sunken living room, nearly 22' long, is at the right of the entrance foyer. It has an attractive bow window facing the front and a log-burning fireplace, one of three in the house. The separate dining room, set in the rear right corner, is accessible from both the living room and the kitchen. The latter has the usual complement of modern appliances, plus a breakfast bar and triple windows over the double sink. To the left of it is a laundry-mud room with a lavatory and a stall shower. This entire area can be reached from the foyer, the rear porch and the kitchen and is adjacent to the basement stairway.

To the left of the foyer is the family room, with a fireplace and its close relationship to the breezeway and the rear porch, having sliding glass doors leading to each of them. Just outside the doors to the porch is a built-in barbecue, which can be used from two sides.

There are five bedrooms on the second floor. Four of them are well, bedrooms — each with a double closet. But the master bedroom is something else again. It has all the features most of us wish we had in our bedrooms, but don't — a fireplace, a dressing room, a private bath with stall shower, a porch reached through sliding glass doors, cross ventilation and plenty of space for almost any type of furniture arrangement, being more than 20' long. The other bathroom on the bedroom floor has dual lavatories and a closet of its own. There is another linen closet in the bedroom hall next to the stairway.

Outside, Design S-14 is traditional and impressive, with the second floor covering the main part of the house but not the breezeway and garage. The materials are well located for variety and have always been the choice of many, hand-split wood shingles, some boards and battens and a bit of stone. The Dutch front door, the bow window and the cupola on the garage add to the pleasant appearance.

S-14 STATISTICS

Design S-14 has a living room, dining room, kitchen, laundry-mud room, foyer, lavatory and family room on the first floor, totaling 1115 square feet. Additionally, there are two porches, an open terrace, breezeway and two-car garage, the latter with three storage closets and a workbench area. On the second floor are five bedrooms and two baths, totaling 1248 square feet. The over-all dimensions, which include the garage and the out-door living areas, are 77' 9" by 33' 11".

Q.—We expect to have our own house built within the next year or two, and have been looking around at various lots on which to build it. We have about narrowed it down to two, and will make a choice within the next few weeks. Is there something you can tell us about selecting a lot that will help us make a decision?

A.—There used to be a rule-of-thumb about keeping the land cost to about 20 per cent of what the entire project will cost. But this has been generally discarded within recent years, as the price of land has continued to rise. It's still a good idea, nevertheless, not to build a modest house on an expensive lot nor a costly house on a piece of inexpensive land. If you violate this principle, you may find later that the resale value of the combined house and lot may be lower than you expected.

Remember too, that your lot should not be so large that it will be difficult to maintain — unless you have the time to take care of it yourself or the money to have someone else maintain it. The other things that should be taken into consideration are very much the same as though you were buying a house already built. Is it convenient to transportation to and from your place of business? Is it near a shopping area? If you have children, are there schools within walking distance and, if not, how will they get there?

Are you getting into a neighborhood of families somewhere in your own class? Are the zoning restrictions likely to keep your land and house within a residential area so that a service station or some other business won't spring up close to you? Will there be extra costs for utilities and other improvements, and are they already in and paid for?

If your house will have a basement, is it the kind of land which will make an excavation prohibitive in cost? Is the lot situated so that there will be good drainage?

It is rare indeed when you get everything you want, either in a lot or a home. You have to make your own decision on which of the desired features are necessary and which you can do without.

Q.—I have a foam rubber project coming up and would like to glue together two thicknesses of 3" each to make a thickness of 6". I did something similar some years ago, but can't remember what kind of glue I used. Can you help me?

A.—Ordinary rubber cement of the kind used in most offices will do a good job on foam rubber. However, since you did your past foam rubber work, several new varieties have come out. One, called pincore foam, is available in thicknesses of up to 6" and either flat or crowned, thus eliminating the necessity of gluing together two thinner pieces.

Good lighting is essential to the beauty of a home, because it emphasizes colors and textures in fabrics, carpeting and upholstery. Properly placed, fixtures can accent prized accessories and paintings, and light can strongly influence the comfort and well-being of the family.

As Americans become more aware of the importance of good lighting, manufacturers are responding with new fixtures to blend with every kind of decor and every room size. A survey of manufacturers' catalogs shows these major style trends emerging for 1970: a greatly expanded selection of sizes, "see-through" fixtures to accent the airy contemporary feel of much of today's furnishings and simplification of traditional designs for greater flexibility and simpler maintenance.

New, smaller chandeliers are adaptable for small rooms and low ceilings. These fixtures provide as much light as a standard five-light chandelier and are designed in a size and range that varies from a three-light wall sconce to a 35-light chandelier. All have been simplified in styling for easier maintenance, but with authenticity retained.

For the traditional-minded, crystal chandeliers have been modernized in line, and are fashioned of curving silver or lacy wrought iron. They are still, however, a galaxy of glitter, shimmering, with faceted crystal pendants.

In a Mediterranean mood, there are massive wrought-iron chandeliers, chain-suspended, and seemingly candle-lit, providing a romantic Old World accent for massive carved wood and sun-splashed colors.

For colonial or provincial homes, there is the flowing dignity of classic Williamsburg or English designs, wrought in glowing brass or pewter, and now in sizes from 6 to 12 or 15-lights. Another design of black iron is often shaded with antique brass or copper shades, and adapts to traditional or provincial settings.

For those who wish elegance on a more contemporary plane, they may select the Scandinavian simplicity of polished brass or silver, delicately swirled and tipped with light.

And for the completely modern taste, "see-thru" fixtures are now being created, by using the unadorned electric light bulb, but set in arresting sculptured forms of stainless steel, smoked glass and plastic. Other graceful "see-thru" fixtures include translucent globes, somewhat reminiscent of gas-lights, but superbly appropriate with today's clean-lined airy furnishings.

As an indication of things to come, the American Home Lighting Institute points out, the "kinetic light box" provides a constantly shifting pattern of light, as relaxing and intriguing as a flickering fireplace. Used singly or in groupings, these fixtures anticipate the near future, when colors will be projected on the walls to decorate a room with light.

Lawyer Disbarred By Detroit Judge

DETROIT (AP) — John A. Buchanan, 57, a Detroit attorney, was permanently disbarred this week on charges he failed to turn over the assets of an estate he had administered.

Circuit Court Judge Joseph A. Sullivan handed down the ruling. The grievance committee of the State Bar of Michigan had recommended the action against Buchanan.

Richard Senter, a spokesman for the State Bar group, said Buchanan had refused to turn the assets of an estate over to another lawyer who had been named administrator. He said Buchanan did not appear at a hearing to answer the charges.

Electric Laundry: SPACE SAVER

Don't worry if space is limited in your home. With the many choices of flameless electric washers and dryers on the market today, finding space for a total electric laundry isn't much of a problem.

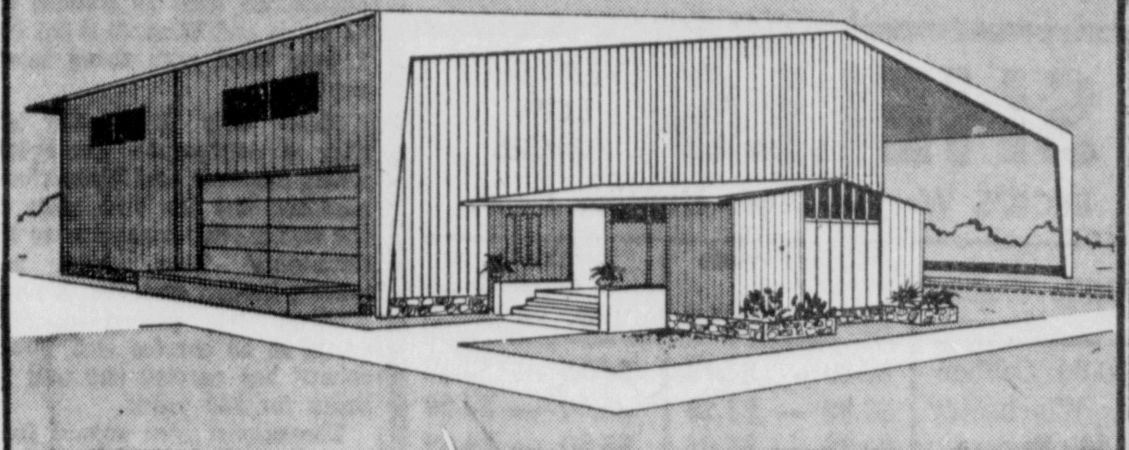

A carefree electric washer-dryer side-by-side combination can fit into a space 30 inches deep and up to only 5 feet, 3 inches wide. Or, install a stacked washer and dryer (or a combination washer-dryer) in the space provided by an average 30-inch closet.

And remember... you'll need only connections for water and electricity. No fuel line connections or venting are required.

Strikes-n-Spares

With Mike Utt

Liz Parlato was the big bowling news of the week with her 277 game during the first shift of the Sunday night Mixed Couples League. Liz picked up a spare in the first frame and then rolled nine straight strikes before missing in the 10th frame. She finished the night with a 573 series and paced her team, the Jolly Cats, to games of 689 and 738 in a 2046 series.

Don Scott led the way in the Elk's 7 p. m. Friday League with a 226 game in a 601 series. Bob Corrivau followed in the scoring department with a 225 game while Ed Larsche had a 219, Ed Gravelle a 212 and Al Kidd a 204.

Jack DeCaire, a 14-year-old bowler in the Saturday afternoon Junior League at the Bowl-A-Rama, bowled games of 189, 211 and 158 this past week for a 558 series. Another of the younger bowlers, Dainial Schutz, picked up the 5-10 split.

Sandra Hull, a 128-average bowler in the Tuesday 7 p. m. Women's League at the Bowl-A-Rama, upped her average this week with a 197 game while Judi Jackson, with a 100 average, rolled a 175 game. Arlene Jerow, secretary of the league commented on Judi's game by saying: "Judi is a fairly new bowler and really showed the old pros!"

Bowlers in the Classic League at the Bowl-A-Rama found the range this past Tuesday night as Ernie Vanlerberghe led the way with games of 245, 240 and 202 in a 687 series while Bob Grenier was right on his heels with a 265, 204 and 202 for a 671. Jiggs Shomin was next with games of 247 and 212 in a 652 series and Red Holmes 233—621, Jack Beck 213—604, Bob Pearson 231 and Ed Gravelle 226, followed. DeGrand Oil had the high team game of 999 and Skradski's had the high team series with a 2931.

Dave Mason, a member of the Escanaba Daily Press bowling team, thought he should receive some special mention for the two splits he picked up while bowling in the Bay de Noc League at the Bowl-A-Rama Tuesday. Dave picked up the 6-7 first and then had little trouble getting the 6-7-10 a short time later. Way to go, Dave. You helped us win three.

Clarence Konas topped all bowlers in the Industrial League this week with games of 227, 233 and 220 for a 680 series while John Laundre was second with games of 208, 212 and 235 in a 655 series. Others doing well on league night were Wally Flath 210-240—608, Al Nardi 211, John Hirn 219, Lou Parlato 200-202 and Marv Pouliot 212. Spartan-Buckeye Clash

Tops Big Grid Saturday

By The Associated Press
Hello Columbus, goodbye Michigan State.

Underdog Michigan State travels to Columbus, Ohio—otherwise known as the Land of the Giants—for a football game Saturday with Ohio State, the nation's No. 1-ranked college team.

A mismatch, it isn't—but most wouldn't give No. 19-ranked Michigan State a Spartans' chance against the bowl-em-over Buckeyes.

"No team is unbeatable," says Michigan State Coach Duffy Daugherty. But he terms Ohio State quarterback Rex Kern the best he's ever seen.

The Ohio State-Michigan State affair is one of an attractive Saturday card featuring a host of games between Top Twenty teams. Tonight, only two games are scheduled—Texas Christian University at Southern Methodist University and Louisiana State University at Miami.

Besides the Ohio State-Michigan State game, second-ranked Texas plays eighth-ranked Oklahoma at Dallas; Stanford, No. 16, is at Southern California, No. 4, in a night contest; No. 5 Penn State hosts No. 17 West Virginia; No. 20 Nebraska visits No. 7 Missouri; No. 9 Purdue is at home to Michigan and No. 6 Georgia entertains Mississippi.

Elsewhere, third-ranked Arkansas is at Baylor in a night contest; Georgia Tech plays at tenth-ranked Tennessee; No. 11 UCLA plays Washington State at Spokane, Wash., Tulane meets No. 12 Florida at Tampa, Fla.; Alabama is at Vanderbilt; No. 18 Wyoming is at home against Texas El Paso and Auburn, tied for the 20th spot, hosts Clemson.

The dashing Buckeyes, last year's Rose Bowl champions, are 19-point favorites over Michigan State. Ohio State's junior-studded squad creamed TCU in the season opener, 62-0, then spilled Washington 41-14 in warming up for their Big Ten title defense.

Michigan State tripped Washington 27-11 and SMU 23-15, then bowed to Notre Dame, 42-28 last week. It was the most points ever scored against Daugherty's Spartans.

The Texas-Oklahoma game, 64th meeting of the pair, features the Longhorns' crackling Wishbone-T formation against the sparkling Diamond-T of the Sooners.

Ted Koy, a cat-quick runner in the Texas attack, says the one thing you remember about this annual head-bashing affair is the hitting.

"You can just be carrying out a fake and you're going to get hit," he says. "It doesn't matter if you're running with the ball or not. It's such a heavy physical game."

Both TCU and SMU are 0-3 thus far this season. TCU has lost to three teams ranked in the Top Ten—ninth-ranked Purdue, Ohio State, and Arkansas. SMU has lost three close ones to Air Force, Georgia Tech and Michigan State.

Coach Charlie Tate of Miami, frustrated by the failure of his team to move the ball in the air, may start sophomore Kelly Cochran as quarterback against LSU, 3-0.

World Series Foes

After Large Purse

BALTIMORE (AP) — The New York Mets have arrived in Baltimore, carrying with them the Tom Seaver-Jerry Koosman pitching payroll that will have to stop the Orioles' booming bats when the World Series opens at Memorial Stadium Saturday.

It'll be Seaver, the Mets' 25-game winner, against Mike Cuellar, the Orioles' 23-game winner, in the opener of the best-of-seven series which carries with it the biggest prize in World Series history—$15,000 to each member of the winning team.

The battle for that prize at the end of baseball's 100th anniversary season commences at 1 p.m. EDT, before an anticipated sellout crowd of 53,000 and a national television audience that will watch the proceedings via NBC.

Koosman Comments

The proceedings, in the eyes of Koosman, likely will be different than they were in the National League playoffs against Atlanta when neither of the two Met aces were able to finish what they started.

"I see no reason why we should have the same trouble," said Koosman. "We'll probably both go out and throw shutouts."

That, it would seem, would be a difficult task against a line-up that includes the Robinson boys—Frank and Brooks—and big Boog Powell, but the Mets may have a secret weapon in Manager Gil Hodges.

"Gil knows that team—he managed in that league," Seaver pointed out, noting Hodges' years at Washington. "He knows the hitters and their strengths and we'll rely on his judgment at least until we feel we have enough knowledge to do anything different."

Mets Workout

Some of his knowledge was imparted by Hodges today after the Mets' first workout at Memorial Stadium. The Mets flew in Thursday night, then got their first look at the field after the Orioles had concluded their morning workout.

The Orioles, who whipped Minnesota in three straight to move through the American League playoffs and into the Series, will go with the same line-up they used against the Twins. But the Mets are changing to their right-handed hitting line-up with Cuellar pitching.

That batting order puts Ron Swoboda in right field in place of Art Shamsky, who hit .538 against the Braves; sends Al Weis to second base to replace Ken Boswell, who hit two homers in the playoffs; substitutes veteran Ed Charles for rookie Wayne Garrett at third base, and puts Donn Clendenon on first instead of Ed Kranepool.

Gentry Vs. Palmer

Hodges said he might leave Boswell in against the Orioles' scheduled second starter, Dave McNally. Baltimore's third game pitcher against Gary Gentry likely will be Jim Palmer when the team's shift to New York and resume action Tuesday.

Monday will be an off day for travel. All games will start at 1 p.m., EDT, except for Sunday's second game at Baltimore, which has a 2 p.m. start.

While the Mets are undoubtedly the sentimental favorites throughout most of the country because of their sudden rise after so many years of ineptitude, the Orioles have been installed as the favorites for their first World Series since 1966.

In that one, the Orioles were the underdogs, but went on to whip the Los Angeles Dodgers in four straight with many of the same stars who this season helped produce 109 victories as Baltimore raced to the American League East title.

Big Guns

The biggest guns are mounted by Frank Robinson and Boog Powell. Robinson hit .308 during the regular season with 32 homers and 100 runs batted in. Powell lashed 37 homers and drove in 121 runs while hitting .304.

Over-all, the Orioles hit .265 as a team compared to .242 for the Mets and out-homered them, 175-109. At the same time, the Orioles' pitching staff, which has not received publicity equal to the Mets', put together a 2.83 earned run average by comparison with New York's 2.99.

Robinson has noted those figures and says, "I think it will be a good Series." Then he adds pointedly, "But no more than five or six games."

Robinson Predicts

"It's hard to believe that the Mets will hit our pitchers as hard as they did the Braves in the playoffs. In fact, there's no way they can. As for their pitchers, Seaver and Koosman could be tough, but I don't think our hitters will be held in check."

"We respect the Mets, but we think we're the best team in either league."

The Series this year closes the season on two-league, four-division system that forced the Mets and the Orioles to move through league playoffs before reaching the final best-of-seven series that will crown a champion.

But by moving through the playoffs, they have guaranteed themselves a minimum losing share of $10,000. The $10,000 to the losers and the minimum $15,000 to the winners are guaranteed—the first time they have not been based on gate receipts.

When the teams return to New York, they will play at Shea Stadium Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, if necessary. If no decision has been reached by then, Friday will be a day off and they will return to Baltimore for games six and seven.

Unheralded Lion Receiver To Start Against Packers

Brumm Returns As Puck Coach

DETROIT (AP) — When the Detroit Lions played their annual intra-squad scrimmage this year at the University of Detroit Stadium each player received an introduction as each ran out to the 50-yard line.

There was loud applause for the big names: Alex Karras, Mel Farr, Wayne Walker, Lem Barney.

There was also loud applause for most of the highly touted rookies, including Albie Taylor and Jim Yarbrough.

But when Joe Gentile announced "Johnny Wright of Illinois," the Stadium was virtually silent. Who is Johnny Wright?

The fans didn't know then, but they ought to know now.

Wright is the second-year pro who, substituting for injured Bill Malinchak, caught a 26-yard touchdown that helped turn the tide in Detroit's 28-21 comeback win over Cleveland last Sunday.

After the grab he leaped for joy and pranced off the field in a display of enthusiasm worthy of any rookie.

But he's not a rookie. He played in five games for Atlanta last season before being cut when Norm Van Brocklin took over as head coach there after Norb Hecker was fired. Detroit picked him up by giving up a seventh-round draft choice.

"I'm real emotional on the field," Wright said while working out at Tiger Stadium in preparation for Detroit's game against Green Bay Sunday.

"When I catch a ball I like to bounce right back up as fast as I can," he said. "If I ever lay on the ground I'll be hurt."

Wright is small as receivers go. He stands six-foot and weighs 190 pounds. He got the starting nod after Malinchak pulled a leg muscle before the Browns game.

"It was just great to see the ball," said the sure-handed receiver, who holds Illinois' major pass catching records.

The Lions had considered letting Wright go when the time to trim their roster to 40 players. They had their quota of wide receivers.

But instead they decided to let someone go from another position.

He has now caught three passes for 51 yards, two more catches than Malinchak made all last year.

Malinchak was dressed for Thursday's practice but is still bothered by his injury and Wright will start against the Packers.

Big Ten Opens Conference Play

CHICAGO (AP) — Big Ten football teams, shoved around for a 12-16-1 record against outsiders, get back into their own class Saturday by playing each other in the start of the conference title drive.

The happiest note during the non-league activity—in which the Big Ten lost all six games to Big Eight foes in the worst showing of the schedule—is the maintenance of Ohio State as No. 1 in the rankings and Purdue's No. 9 niche. Only other team in the top 20 is Michigan State, 19th.

The unbeaten, defending champion Buckeyes—ineligible to return to the Rose Bowl this season—open their Big Ten campaign at home against Michigan State. The well-stocked Bucks are installed a 19-point favorite by the oddsmakers although brilliant quarterback Rex Kern has been sidelined during some of the week's practices with a pulled muscle.

The Bucks waltzed over TCU 62-0 and Washington 41-14 in warming up for their title defense. MSU downed Washington 27-11 and Southern Methodist 23-11 then were blown off the field by Notre Dame 42-28. It was the most points ever scored against Coach Duffy Daugherty's Spartans.

In other Big Ten openers, Northwestern (0-3) is at Illinois (0-3), Minnesota (0-2-1) at Indiana (1-2); Iowa (2-1) at Wisconsin (0-3), and Purdue (3-0) at Michigan (2-1).

Favored are Illinois by one point, Indiana by 11, Purdue by three, Iowa by 10.

Purdue, after defeating Texas Christian and Notre Dame, showed championship quality in a rallying 36-35 victory over Stanford last week behind the pitching and leadership of Mike Phipps.

Phipps is the nation's leader on total offense with a gain of 1,046 yards, 928 of them on 51 pass completions. He has hurled 10 TD passes and run for two more.

Michigan, geared by quarterback Don Moorhead and half-back Glenn Doughty, who is ailing with a sprained ankle, was impressive in pounding Vanderbilt and Washington. But the Wolverines were inflicted with fumbles and interceptions last week in being trampled by Missouri 40-17.

Northwestern and Illinois each was 1-9 last year and The Wildcats have beaten the Illini only once in the last six years—

1966. The Illini's only victory in 1968 was 14-0 over the Wildcats. Indiana, after walloping Kentucky, was upset by California and then buried in the snow 30-7 by Colorado. Minnesota just doesn't seem to be able to get off the ground, being mince-meated by Arizona State and Nebraska and tied by Ohio U.

Iowa is the nation's second leader in total offense with 538 yards a game. After losing to Oregon State, the Hawkeyes belted Washington State and Arizona.

Caray Loses Job As Cards' Voice

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals begin play next season with a new look and a new radio voice. Harry Caray, who called Redbird games for 25 years, was fired Thursday.

The enthusiastic sportscaster, who became something of an institution in the eyes of thousands of Cardinal fans, said he did not know why his contract was not renewed, but he did not buy the sponsor's explanation.

Sponsor Anheuser-Busch, Inc. said the decision not to renew the contract was made by the brewery firm's marketing department after a study of the entire advertising, promotional and merchandising plan for the coming year.

The company said Jack Buck, who had teamed with Caray to broadcast Cardinal game action since 1954, was named to replace him.

Buck also is sports director of radio station KMOX, which earlier this week informed Caray he would no longer do a 10-minute daily sports show sponsored by Anheuser-Busch.

Caray, 52, said "after 25 years, you'd think they'd call you into the office and tell you rather than call you on the telephone five minutes before they put it on the air," Caray said.

"Marketing to me is sales and I only sold this product (Busch Beer) from 200,000 cases a year to more than 2 million barrels a year. It's the most successful sales story in the industry."

Ishpeming Wins Annual Running Event Thursday

RAPID RIVER — The Ishpeming Hematites and Pete Dishnow emerged victorious by a wide margin yesterday afternoon in the annual Rapid River Invitational Cross Country Run.

Ishpeming scored 28 points in the meet, well ahead of runner-up Escanaba's 89, while Dishnow set a new course record in the event, covering the two-mile course in 10:41. The old record of 10:59 was set in last year's running.

Following Ishpeming and Escanaba in the point standings were Rapid River with 99 points, Gladstone 100, Holy Name 105, Big Bay de Noc 122, Munising 193, Eben 196 and Rock 250.

Former Scout Dies

Ray (Red) Lucas, a former major league baseball scout for the New York and San Francisco Giants, died yesterday at his home in Harrison, Mich., after suffering a heart attack.

The personable former major league hurler was the first of the big league scouts to begin combing the U.P. for baseball talent, beginning his major league schools in the Iron Mountain-Kingsford area in 1949 and shifting to Escanaba a few years later.

The list of Upper Peninsula baseball players signed by Lucas includes Al Erickson, John Martinac and Dick Lough of Escanaba and Bill Brotherton of Manistique.

Erickson, after an outstanding career as a catcher and outfielder at Western Michigan University, got the closest to the major leagues of any of the players signed by Lucas in the U.P. After spending a few years in the Giant farm system, Erickson gave up his professional baseball career in favor of a teaching profession.

In addition to his trout camps and schools, Lucas also instructed the younger players of the Escanaba area in the finer points of the game.

Union Protests Settlement Of Anti-Smog Suit

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The national AFL-CIO, acting as a "friend of the court," Thursday protested proposed settlement of a government suit alleging major auto companies have conspired to delay development of antismog devices.

In a statement to Federal Judge Jesse W. Curtis Jr., the union alleged that the Nixon administration directed the Justice Department to settle the case out of court after secret negotiations with Ford, General Motors, Chrysler and American Motors.

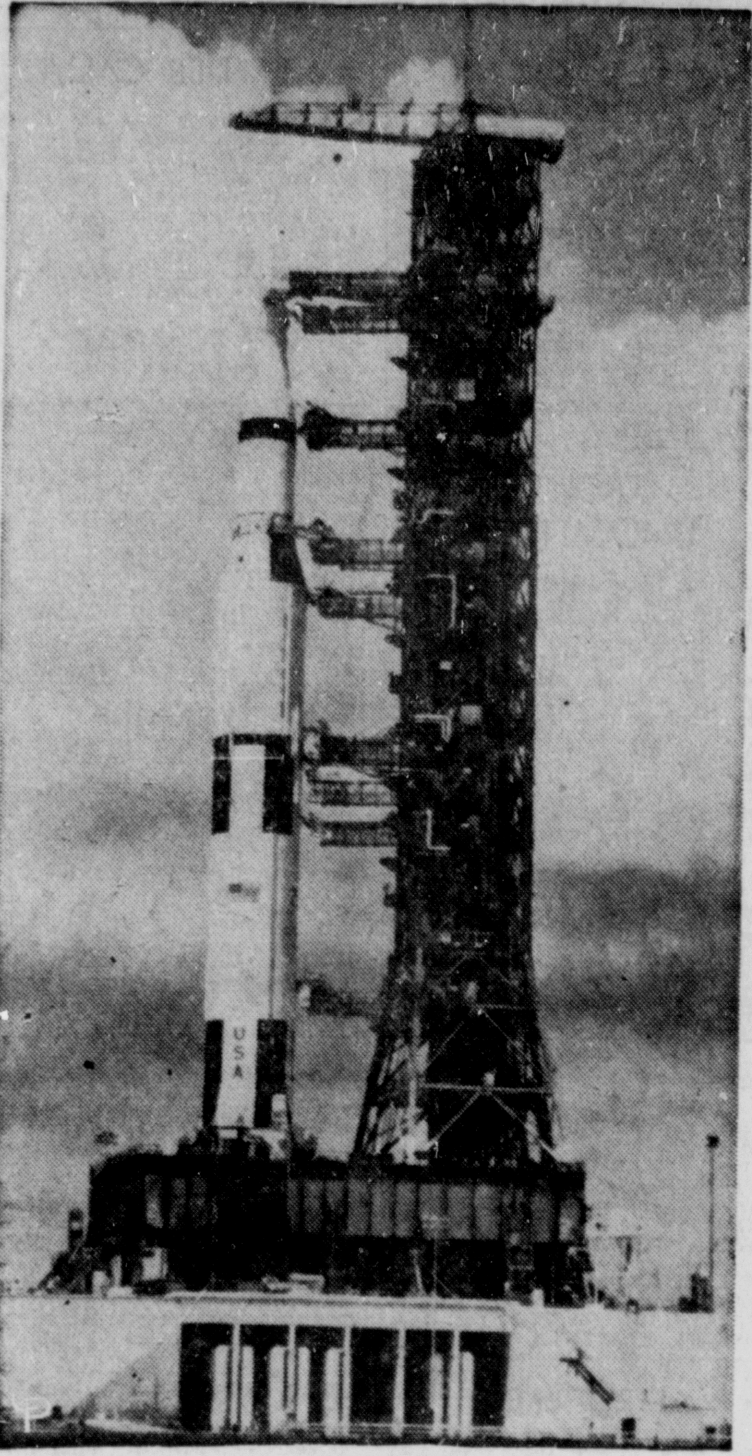

The suit was filed last year after a federal grand jury's investigation of practices in the auto industry.

Government attorneys said the automakers, in return for the settlement, agreed to produce antismog devices in competition with each other.

The labor group said it is "strange that this administration urges stern measures against individual law breakers yet allows corporate crime to go unpunished and the information gathered by the grand jury to remain hidden."

Black Leaders Study Tactics To Produce Jobs

DETROIT (AP)—Black leaders will use "whatever tactics and strategies are necessary" to get more jobs for Negroes in Detroit building trade unions, a spokesman said Thursday after an unsuccessful negotiating session with officials of the Detroit Building Trades Council (AFL-CIO).

The spokesman of the black Ad Hoc Construction Coalition threatened building-site demonstrations similar to those which disrupted projects in Chicago, Pittsburgh and Seattle.

He did not specify what tactics would be used, but said a confrontation seems inevitable. "That's not a threat, it's a promise," he told newsmen.

Jack Wood, secretary of the Building Trades Council, replied that the black demands were "simply not negotiable."

Higher Prices For Meat May Bring 'Beef'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumers will have to pay even more for beef if cattlemen are expected to satisfy the nation's increasing hunger for meat, according to a packing industry spokesman.

"With all due sympathy for their problems," Herrell DeGraff told congressmen Wednesday, "I have to say to consumers that on a continuing basis they cannot have both the beef supply they want and the level of beef prices they seem to want."

DeGraff, president of the American Meat Institute, said the cattle industry had reached the point where it must expand to meet future demands.

But he said cattlemen won't make the investment unless they can expect a reasonable price. He did not say how high the price might go.

He testified before a House government operations subcommittee studying the high and rapid retail meat price increase this year.

DeGraff blamed the 16 per cent beef price increase between July 1968 and July 1969 on shortages. He said that squeeze is easing and prices are coming down.

But he said it has been clear to the industry since 1965 that beef prices "would have to increase for a more fundamental reason than a bad winter."

Beef production from a basic 50 million animals increased to 21 billion pounds this year from 13.5 billion in 1955 because of improved methods, DeGraff said. But, he went on, the only way to meet the rising demand is by increasing the basic number of cattle.

But Rep. John W. Wyder, R-N.Y., said he is going to turn the association's action over to the attorney general's office if he can find any connection with this year's sharp price rise.

"I don't know whether it's illegal or not but I'm going to find out," Wyder said in an interview. "When any other industry bands together to cut production and increase prices, it's illegal."

Chinese Wave Olive Branch Toward U.S.

NEW YORK (AP) — Nixon administration officials say Communist China has indicated that it wants to ease its hostile stand toward the United States, the New York Times reported.

In a dispatch from Washington, Peter Grose said various branches of the government are studying what response to make, as a possible preliminary to opening talks with the Chinese.

Diplomats from Western countries who met Chinese officials in Peking last week during ceremonies marking the 20th anniversary of the Communist state reported little anti-American invective was displayed, the Times said.

These diplomats also reported a Chinese interest in easing trade and travel restrictions with the United States.

The State Department, on July 21, agreed to permit tourists traveling abroad to bring up to $100 in Communist Chinese products home and widened the categories of persons who might be permitted to visit China.

Chinese officials have apparently accepted this move as a symbol of U.S. intentions at bridging the gap between the United States and China, the Times said.

University of Michigan astronomer Hazel M. Losh said the Hunter's Moon will partially compensate for October's shorter daylight, decreasing from about 12 hours at the start of the month to about 10 hours, 20 minutes at the end.
